DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Business Is Somewhat Retarded by Uncertainties.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: The new year begins with such uncertainty that business is somewhat retarded. Speculation in products has not been active. Cotton is unchanged, although the receipts for the week have been very large, but some slackening appears in the foreign demand.

Wheat is about 1 cent higher and corn the same, without distinct reason in either case, for the government report, tardily conforming to commercial estimates of some months ago, did not command great confidence. Wheat receipts at western points were almost double last year's. Corn receipts are about a quarter larger than last year.

The industrial situation has not materially changed. There is much hesitation in the iron business, with some advance in Bessemer pig because of the expectation that Connellsville coke and lake ore will both be dearer, and yet finished products of iron and steel are on the whole quoted a little lower, and the nail association is still in session to determine whether it will abandon the effort to maintain a fixed price.

Everything turns on the contracts for ore which are still unsettled, but the great excess in production of pig iron over the present demand is no longer denied and it is expected that quite a number of the furnaces will presently discontinue production.

Sales of wool are large, although a large part of the purchases is of a speculative character, based upon the belief that prices may be advanced if the new tariff bill goes into effect. The opening of woolen goods shows a further tendency toward lower prices, in spite of the prevalent belief that higher prices would be realized before long if the revenue bill which passed the house should become a law.

Failures for the week have been 431 in the United States against 420 last year, and 53 in Canada against 54 last year.

MRS. DAVIDSON HELD.

For Thirteen Years Her Mind Was a Complete Blank.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11.—In the preliminary examination of Mrs. Davidson on the charge of extorting money from Rev. Dr. Brown, Mrs. Davidson, on cross-examination, said her mind was an absolute blank as to what happened to her from 1874 to 1887. She said she did not know where she had been, what she had done, whether she had ever served a term in the Essex house of correction in Massachusetts, if she had given birth to a child or if she had swindled various persons whose names the prosecution mentioned.

Two witnesses testified that they knew Mrs. Baddin, for whom Mrs. Davidson claims she accepted the money from Dr. Brown. E. S. Simpson, editor of The Chronicle, testified that Mattie Overman had called at his office and offered to sell him a story about a prominent man for $1,000, but did not mention the name of the man involved.

Mrs. Davidson was held in $5,000 bail to answer the charge of extortion.

Serious Charges Made.

PHOENIX, A. T., Jan. 11.—Governor Hughes stands charged with official corruption, and his personal reputation for integrity and honesty is impeached by a report of the last grand jury. Official crimes of malfeasance are alleged, and the whole business is likely to create a storm in congress where it will be called up unless the allegations are met in the local courts.

Another Boundary Dispute.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 11.—The boundary dispute between Nicaragua and Costa Rica is assuming a more serious phase. Costa Rica is daily becoming more urgent in her demands. She now claims lands to which, it is said, she has never had a shadow of lawful right. This government will propose to submit the matter to President Barrios of Guatemala for arbitration.

Will Limit Output of Iron.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11.—The Bessemer iron ore interests on the Mesaba, Vermillion, Gogebic, Menominee and Marquette ranges have combined to limit the output of the Lake Superior mining region and give the iron market in all its branches a stability which it has not enjoyed for years.

The Oldest Twins Living.

BROWNSTOWN, Ind., Jan. 11.—Aunt Malinda Benton of this place and Lucinda Tuel of Terre Haute, the aged twins, reached their 90th birthday anniversary yesterday. The fact of their being the oldest twins living yet remains undisputed

Funeral Services Held.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Funeral services over the remains of E. B Wight, the correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean and the Boston Journal, were held at his late residence.

Pushing Their Claim.

PORTLAND, Ind., Jan. 11.—The descendants of Daniel Pegg are pushing their claim to 34 acres of land in the heart of Philadelphia valued at $55,000,000.

Charged With Murder.

VINCENNES, Ind., Jan. 11.—James Redmond, Charles Slocum and Samuel Chancellor have been arrested for the murder of Moses Latta last May.

Gold That Got Away.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The treasury lost $2,026,000 in gold coin, of which $1,250,000 was for export. This leaves the true amount of the gold reserve $76,100,164.

Gone Into Liquidation.

MONTREAL, Jan 11.—At an adjourned meeting of the shareholders of the Bank du Peuple it was decided to go into voluntary liquidation.

THEY GET ACTION.

Cuban Insurgents Win Some Important Victories.

THE CITY OF GUIRA CAPTURED.

Spanish Troops Surrender With Large Stores of Munitions of War—The Royalist Prisoners Promptly Released on Parole—Interesting Details of the Engagement at Guira.

KEY WEST, Jan. 11.—The insurgents captured Guira, a city of 8,000 inhabitants and the third in importance in the province of Havana and Pinar del Rio. Collazo, leading the vanguard of Gomez's army, appeared before Guira and demanded its surrender.

The city was garrisoned by 1,200 Spanish troops under Colonel Guiterrez, who refused to surrender. Collazo, who had 1,000 men, promptly entered the city and engaged the Spanish troops in the streets. Desperate fighting followed, much of it hand to hand, resulting in heavy loss on each side.

While the battle was raging Gomez, with reinforcements, came to Collazo's aid, and the Spaniards took refuge in the cathedral, a great stone building which is almost impregnable. Gomez made repeated assaults, gaining no advantage. Finally Gomez ordered fires kindled against the doors and on the roof of the cathedral.

Guiterrez, realizing that further resistance simply meant the cremation and slaughter of his men, agreed to surrender and marched the remnant of his command out of the cathedral.

Out of the 1,200 Spaniards 600 were either killed or wounded. The insurgent loss was 400. Gomez complimented Guitterrez on his bravery and released the Spaniards on parole. The city treasury was seized and the insurgents obtained $8,000. The Cuban flag was raised over the city hall amid the cheers of the populace.

The Cuban army entered the city of Alquizar, province of Havana, which is beyond Guira and nearer Havana. Alquizar was garrisoned by 300 Spanish troops, and after a brief skirmish, in which 30 were killed, they laid down their arms. The Spaniards had a great quantity of munitions stored in Alquizar, and these Gomez seized.

Havana About to Tumble.

HAVANA, Jan. 11.—The authorities have discovered evidence of what they consider a conspiracy to cause an uprising in Havana and to hand the city over to the insurgents. The conspiracy is believed to be widely ramified and its discovery has caused great uneasiness in Havana and suspicions that disaffection is much more widely disseminated than has been admitted. Thirty persons have been arrested for complicity in the plot and they have been imprisoned, while Aquilino Solano, police inspector for the port of Havana, has been relieved from duty.

The Chief Clerk Arrested.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The judges of the court of special sessions held a secret session last night, and at its conclusion caused the arrest of their chief clerk, Theodore McDonald. In the Tombs prison it was learned from the commitment signed by Justice Jerome that the charge is grand larceny in the second degree.

Four Men Were Killed.

CELINA, Tenn., Jan. 11.—A mob of 15 men, led by McClure Williams, a notorious character, attempted to take the town and a fight resulted, in which four men were killed—Williams, the leader of the mob, the sheriff and one of his deputies and Ed Parrott, who, a few weeks ago, killed a brother of Williams.

Della Bird In Jail.

DEFIANCE, O., Jan. 11.—Della Bird of Marvin Kuntz notoriety, is in jail charged with complicity in a highway robbery. She planned for Albert Relyea to rob Charles Krotz, a farmer. The attack was made, but a teamster frightened the highwayman away.

Blackburn Was Nominated.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 11.—The Democratic joint legislative caucus nominated Senator J. C. S. Blackburn as the candidate of that party to succeed himself in the United States senate. The deciding ballot resulted: Blackburn, 37; McCreery, 18; Brown, 6.

Will Death Come to the Rescue?

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 10.—Isaac Wilson, Democratic member from Nelson county, is dying. McCreary has withdrawn from the senatorial race and Brown has been entered. If Wilson dies the legislature will no longer be a tie politically.

Both Were Killed.

RANSOMVILLE, N. Y., Jan. 11.—George H. Smith, whose wife had left him, went to the home of her father, Robert Clapsaddle, and shot the old gentleman dead. Smith was followed by a posse and killed.

Bold Bank Robbery.

VERNON, Mo., Jan. 11.—Eight masked men entered the city, captured Nightwatchman Hoover and bound him to a tree, and then blew the safe of the Farmers' bank with dynamite and escaped with $9,000.

Turf Winners.

At New Orleans—Semele, Burley Leaf, Ashland, Robert Latta, Soundmore.

SHAM BATTLE FOUGHT.

Venezuelans Have Fun at the Expense of Great Britain.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 11.—The political excitement is unabated. Senor Bricano, editor of El Patriota, has been arrested, together with other partisans of Andueza Palacio.

The newspapers here are discussing the possibility of a British warship in the harbor of La Guayara being able to throw a shell over the mountain into the city of Caracas.

To quiet apprehension in regard to it the matter has been submitted to expert engineers here. Their opinion is awaited with considerable anxiety.

During the last revolution the American Admiral Walker, on board the flagship Chicago, after studying the question, declared that it was impossible because the guns could not be elevated enough.

The anti-English manifestations continue. At Valencia the Venezuelans divided themselves into two parties, one representing English invaders and the other the patriots and began a sham fight. Those on the Venezuela side became so excited that they went at it in earnest, with the result that several who were enacting the role of Englishmen received severe stab wounds. The police had to be called to stop it.

The Report Is True.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Congressman Livingston of Georgia says the report that the British are strengthening their outposts in Venezuela and marching into Venezuela is true; that he received a private dispatch corroborating it.

SURRENDERED THEIR ARMS.

Affairs In the Transvaal Seem to Be Assuming Normal State.

PRETORIA, Transvaal, Jan. 11.—The disarming at Johannesburg has been completed without mishap, and the Boer police now patrol the town. The crisis is practically ended and orders were issued for all Boer commanders to proceed to Pretoria, where they met yesterday. Thus ends this unique revolution, during which not even a policeman has been knocked on the head and not a single act of violence has been committed. President Kruger and the executive have exhibited remarkable coolness throughout. The stability of the government has been unmistakably displayed.

There is a remarkable absence of excitement here, but feelings have been aroused which will not be allayed for years. The Boers' distrust of the Uitlanders has been increased tenfold and the sense of failure rankles with the Uitlanders. Yet both sides desire that the government should remain republican and free from outside control. The statesmen now in conference must therefore devise means for an adjustment which will secure peace and thereby attract foreign capital.

Some of Them Escaped.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 11.—Purser McDonald, the second Mate and two Japanese seamen from the Strathnevis, who left the disabled steamer in an open boat when off Destruction island and who were believed to have been lost, arrived in port on the lighthouse tender Columbia, which picked the party up after they reached the island.

They May Not Close.

MUNCIE, Ind., Jan. 11.—There is now some doubt as to whether the window glass factories of the United States will close tonight, as decided by the Western Window Glass Manufacturers' association at their meeting in Chicago 10 days ago.

Governor Bradley's Message.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 11.—Governor W. O. Bradley's message to the general assembly of Kentucky was laid before the two houses at Frankfort. It dealt mostly with local state affairs.

The Gould Inheritance Tax.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Surrogate Fitzgerald has signed an order fixing the amount of inheritance tax to be paid by the heirs of the late Jay Gould at $662,568.95.

Silver Senators Confident.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Silver senators claim they will pass the silver substitute for the house bond bill by a majority of three votes.

Big Vessel Wrecked.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 11.—A big four-masted iron vessel is ashore near Carmanah Point, Vancouver island, and is a total wreck.

The Hacketts Have Assigned.

RICHMOND, Ky., Jan. 11.—Jacob Hackett and T. B. Hackett assigned. Liabilities $25,000 and $16,000 respectively.

Ex-City Treasurer Arrested.

OMAHA, Jan. 11.—Ex-City Treasurer Bolln has been arrested for embezzling over $300,000 of the city's funds.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT.

Here You Have Them Ready For Immediate Consumption.

Nearly all the railroads in Cuba have now been destroyed by insurgents.

Thomas Prosser, American representative of the Krupp gun works, is dead.

It is thought England will use the Transvaal incident as an excuse for an increase in the navy.

The Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau Grand Opera company of New York is to play two weeks at San Francisco.

John M. Fenlin, an extensive glazed kid manufacturer of Philadelphia, has assigned. Liabilities, $40,000.

The estate of the late John Hoey, ex-president of the Adams Express company, will more than pay his debts.

Judge Robert S. Woodruff says Mrs. Frank A. Magowan of Trenton, N. J., will resist her husband's effort to get an Oklahoma divorce.

The story that McGough had confessed and exonerated Bat Shea of the killing of Ross at Troy, N. Y., is not sustained by facts, and Shea will be electrocuted.

The annual returns show that notwithstanding the export of coal from Nova Scotia to the United States trebled during 1895, the total of output for the year shows a large decrease.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Horrible Fate of the Crew of an Ill-Fated Steamer.

ADRIFT AT SEA IN AN OPEN BOAT.

One by One They Died Until at Last Nine Reached Shore In a Dying Condition, Only One of Whom Was Able to Walk—Some May Recover, but There Appears No Chance For the Others.

HALIFAX, Jan. 11.—The sufferings of the nine survivors of the crew of the ill-fated steamer Ealing, during the four days they were in an open boat exposed to gale and bitterly cold atmosphere, are almost indescribable. When their boat landed at Canso they were nearly all in a helpless condition. One man could walk when the boat landed, the rest being carried to neighboring houses and cared for.

The men state that the Ealing struck a rock about 6 p. m. Monday, in a dense vapor, while going at quarter speed. Half an hour afterward it was necessary to take to the boats, as the ship was settling fast and the sea very heavy. They were driven 90 miles to sea.

Soon after daylight on Tuesday two of the men succumbed to the exposure. During Tuesday night Captain Meek and a fireman named Wilson died. Thursday morning the first engineer died and later in the day three others expired.

Friday at noon, as they caught sight of land, the ninth of their crew, an apprentice named Gilroy died. These were all consigned to the sea as they died, to keep the heavily iced boat from sinking.

THE SEAS ARE THE LIMITS.

The English Lords Do Not Like the Monroe Doctrine the Least Bit.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Lord Playfair, formerly deputy speaker of the house of commons and president of the council, strongly supports the idea of a permanent tribunal of arbitration. He says the legislatures of both the United States and Great Britain should adopt the principle, but that would not stop the agitation over the Monroe doctrine. It must be remembered, he says, that it was England which drove the foreigners out of America. She was, therefore, greatly responsible for the Monroe doctrine. He suggests that England and America meet in conference and arrive at some definition of the limits of the Monroe doctrine.

Lebaudy Needed a Guardian.

PARIS, Jan. 11.—A journalist named Rosenthal, who is well known as a writer for the Figaro and who also acted as Paris correspondent for a New York paper, has been arrested in connection with the scandal growing out of the settlement of the estate of the late Max Lebaudy.

Mr. Burch's Opinion.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Mr. N. Geach Burch, the counsel for Venezuela, who has just returned to London from South Africa, is quoted as saying he did not think the United States would support Venezuela's boundary claim a whit beyond what was equitable and just.

Asks For Their Dismissal.

MACON, Jan. 11.—At a meeting held in New Orleans in regard to the Central receivership, Attorney Henry Crawford, acting for Thomas & Ryan, presented to Judge Don A. Pardee for his signature an order dismissing the receivers of the Central railroad.

Confession of Error Filed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The solicitor general filed a confession of error in the United States supreme court in the case of Thomas J. Thornton, defendant in a murder case from the western district of Arkansas in which Judge Parker presides.

Delivers Another Letter.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 11.—Prince von Radolin, the German ambassador to St Petersburg, in returning here brought another letter from Emperor William to the czar. This frequent exchange of courtesy is much remarked here.

RETIRES TO PRIVATE LIFE.

John McBride Says He Is Done With Official Positions.

MASSILLON, O., Jan. 11.—John McBride has written out his formal farewell to the American Federation of Labor. He speaks in generous terms of Samuel Gompers, and reiterates his determination, expressed during the heat of the late convention, as follows:

"I shall never again either seek or accept official life or official responsibility in the labor movement; but whenever opportunity offers or occasion demands, my voice and pen will be used to aid and relieve suffering humanity and oppressed labor."

The McMillin Telescope.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—A telescope was opened at the Ohio State university. It is a gift from Emerson McMillin, formerly of Columbus but now of New York. This instrument has a 12-inch lens, 16-foot barrel, transit four feet in length and 3-inch aperture, and a spectroscope on the model of Lick observatory, though on reduced lines. Mr. McMillin also erected the building for the telescope at a cost of $10,000. The cost of the equipment he has not made public.

New Incorporations.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan 11.—The Richland County Law Library association, Mansfield; the Nineteen Hundred club of Cincinnati; board of trustees of the Coshocton Baptist association, Coshocton; the Arcade Savings Bank company, Cleveland, increase of capital stock from $50,000 to $100,000, and amendment changing name to Euclid Avenue Savings and Banking company, and enlarging purpose.

Officers Elected.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—The State Trades and Labor assembly elected officers as follows: President, T. L. Lewis of Bellaire; vice president, William Colwell of Toledo; secretary, W. B. Owens of Cincinnati; treasurer, S. P. Ewing of Columbus; executive committee, D. P. Boyer of Columbus, W. B. Violet of Cincinnati and W. S. Haskins of Shawnee. Columbus was selected for the next meeting.

They Want Elliott Out.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—The case of W. J. Elliott, serving a life sentence in the penitentiary for the murder of A. C. Osborn, is to come before the board of pardons next week and a desperate effort is being made in his behalf.

Half Million Assignment.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—Mr. A. C. Ady, real estate and builder, has assigned to Mr Benjamin Monett. Liabilities, $490,515; assets, $554,000. There are 151 pieces of property involved in the assignment.

Action of Trades Assembly.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan 11.—The State Trades Assembly has indorsed the blue label of the International Cigar makers union and opposed prison contract labor in its present form.

International Bricklayers' Union.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—The national officers of the International Bricklayers' union are at the Hotel Upton to examine credentials prior to the opening of a two weeks' session Jan. 13.

Probably Fatally Injured.

MARYSVILLE, O., Jan. 11. Ex-Auditor John Ramage of Delaware, O., 60, was knocked under a train while resisting a robber, and his right hand and one leg were cut off.

A Judge to Resign.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Jan. 11. Judge H. W. Seney of the Sixth judicial circuit will resign to practice law in New York, and Hon. John W. Price will succeed him.

Smallpox at Millonsburg.

MILLONSBURG, O., Jan 11.—Smallpox epidemic is becoming alarming here. The disease was brought here by a man who visited Bridgeport.

Judgment Affirmed.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan 11.—The supreme court has affirmed the judgment of $5,000 of Emma Griffith against the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

A Minister Indicted.

FINDLAY, O., Jan. 11.—Rev. Joseph Elmon Powell has been indicted for false and fraudulent registration at the last election.

Saloonkeepers Indicted.

MILLERSBURG, O., Jan. 11.—Every saloonkeeper in town has been indicted for keeping their shops open during the county fair.

Wholesale Druggists Assign.

PEORIA, Ills., Jan. 11.—Singer & Wheeler, incorporated, wholesale dealers in drugs, assigned to Charles R. Wheeler. Liabilities, capital stock $250,000 and bills payable $116,107; assets, stock on hand $72,867 and bills receivable $173,176. The principal creditor is the Merchants' National bank, $39,000.

Will Have a Summer Home.

ROME, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Ex-President Harrison, who spent a portion of last summer at Dodd's camp, First lake, Fulton chain, was so pleased with the north woods that he has bought of Dr. Seward Webb about 25 acres of land at the point where First and Second lakes join, and will build a cottage.

HYPNOTISM IN SURGERY.

A Case Showing How It Can Be Made to Supersede Anaesthetics.

A striking example of the efficacy of hypnotism as an adjunct to surgical science was demonstrated within the past few days at the Johns Hopkins hospital. This case—a difficult one of long standing and obscure symptoms—was that of a young lady, into whose side an incision was made and a diseased kidney was treated. The incision was then sewed up, and she is now recovering, suffering no pain or inconvenience whatever.

This difficult and painful as well as dangerous operation was done while the patient was under hypnotic suggestion, being hypnotized by one of the medical staff. The patient was in the hypnotic state for about half an hour, and when seen at the hospital was delighted with the success of the experiment, declaring she felt no pain or consciousness whatever when the operation was in progress save that she had a confused and not unpleasant impression that some one stood by her side and was cutting paper with a pair of scissors.

After consciousness had returned she said she felt the natural pain consequent to any surgical operation done while under ordinary anaesthetics. Hypnosis, in her case, was limited only to the time it required for the operation. It is, however, possible to continue the suggestion until the patient is out of all pain.—Baltimore American.

The Turnstile Defenses of Chicago.

Even if British war vessels should get into lake waters it does not follow that Detroit and the other points would be easy prey. Granting, however, that they would strike colors, it again does not follow that Chicago would do likewise.

Chicago is one of the best defended cities this side of Doomsday. On its lake front from the river to Jackson park is the Illinois Central railroad. Now, England has bumped against many a foe, worthy and unworthy, but she has never encountered the Illinois Central. When she does, she will not only abandon all notions of capturing Chicago, but she will find a turnstile on every ship, and if she fools around here long enough she will lose the ships.

The Monroe doctrine is a stanch affair, but in comparison with the turnstile doctrine it is lame, wabbling, vacillating. If England wishes to retain her autonomy, she will not monkey with Chicago.—Chicago News.

Cut the Telegraph.

HAVANA, Jan. 11.—The insurgents have destroyed the railroad station and have cut the telegraph at Aguada in the province of Matanzas.

Weather Indications.

For Ohio—Partly cloudy with snow flurries or light showers near the lakes; slowly rising temperature; easterly shifting to southerly winds.

For Indiana—Fair and warmer; southerly winds.

CONDEMNATION CASE

BROUGHT BY THE CITY AGAINST ANN A SNYDER AND OTHERS

Answers Filed in the Booth and Last Cases Against the City of Marion George Hart Commences an Unimportant Suit.

In the case of Elizabeth Booth against the City of Marion and John Kinsler, in the court of common pleas, City Solicitor Crissinger, this morning filed an answer for the city.

In its answer the city alleges, after admitting its municipal character and that John Kinsler is the street commissioner of the city, that February 4, 1895, the city passed an ordinance for the opening up of George street, which ordinance was duly published in the DAILY STAR and that March 11, 1895, the city began condemnation proceedings against Elizabeth Booth, T. C. Booth and others and a jury was impaneled, which rendered a verdict allowing the plaintiff herein $1225, which verdict was affirmed and approved by the court.

The city says that $1225 was paid to the plaintiff herein, whereby the title of the Booth premises passed to the city and that the plaintiff by her agent and husband was present when the street was laid out and her agent pointed out where the stakes were to be driven.

The defendants say that notwithstanding the order of the court, the plaintiff refuses to give up posession of her property and has willfully caused to be erected thereon a dwelling house, which building was purposely built with full knowledge that the city had appropriated and paid for the land.

The defendants say that the dwelling house referred to is an obstruction to the street and a nuisance and that unless enjoined by the court the defendants will remove as much of the property as projects into the street.

Wherefore the defendants pray that the petition of plaintiff may be dismissed and that on final hearing of the matter a mandatory order may be issued to plaintiff to move the building off the land of the plaintiff on George street.

George Hart, by his attorney, D. K. Crissinger, this morning filed in the common pleas court a petition against J. H. Irey, setting up that he rented a tract of land in Claridon township for a valuable consideration and that, after he had cleared and seeded the tract, the defendant put one, Charles Seckel in possession of the land, wherefore he prays for $50 with interest from April 23, 1895.

City Solicitor Crissinger today filed an answer in the court of common please in the case of John F. Lust against the City of Marion and others.

The defendants, the City of Marion C. W. Leffler, treasurer, and U. K. Guthery, auditor, admit that plaintiff is the owner of lot 162 in Peters' addition to Marion and that the lot is at corner of Main and Columbia streets and also admit that the building fronts on Main street and no building fronts on Columbia street.

The defendants then go on to set up the various ordinances passed for sewer construction and asks that the injunction granted restraining them from the collection of the assessments made against the property may be dissolved.

City Solicitor Crissinger today began condemnation proceeding in the court of common pleas against Anna Snyder, Jacob A. Snyder and the widow and heirs of Adam Conrad, deceased, under the title of the City of Marion against Anna Snyder and others.

The city seeks to condemn a strip of land seventeen feet wide off the Conrad property and a strip fifty feet wide off the Snyder property for the opening of Pleasant street from Pearl to Orchard.

VERY STANGE CASE.

The Body of Mrs. Cronenwett Would Not Become Cold.

The following clipping from Friday's Galion Inquirer will be of interest to many in this city who were well acquainted with the lady in her lifetime:

Mrs. A. A. Cronenwett, who died Monday morning of heartfailure, exhibited remarkable signs of life from that time until Thursday evening.

The body remained warm in some parts and when the skin was stretched at any place, upon being released it would resume its former position.

After the remains were deposited in the vault at Fairview various remedies were applied tending to revive her if she was afflicted with suspended animation but with no result. The body would not stiffen in death, neither would life become more evident, until Thursday night in the vault, despite the warm bricks placed beside the casket, she became both cold and stiff.

The various relatives and the physician, Dr. T. L. Brown, are now satisfied that the lady is dead, although interment will not take place until decomposition has begun, in order to satisfy all.

Looking for Heirs.

The Galion Sun-Review publishes a letter from John F. McCalmount, of Paris, Pa., administrator of the estate of Israel Bebout, deceased, to Postmaster Alsop, in which he inquires of the family of Abraham Bebout, who at one time resided near Galion. Jesse Bebout, of this city, was seen by the STAR today, and states that he is a relative of Abraham Bebout, but does not know how close. He has a list of the Bebout family back for the past couple of hundred years, which might be of some value to McCalmount in looking up the heirs.

DRINKING WATER.

Impure Drinking Water and Its Many Evils.

Disease Germs in Water.

Upon the purity of our drinking water depends our health. If the water we drink is foul or poisoned, disease is sure to result. Numerous epidemics of typhoid fever and diphtheria have been traced directly to poisoned water.

The blood is the drinking water of the body. Every organ and tissue every muscle and nerve is bathed in it and drinks from it.

If the blood is full of poisons and impurities, every organ in the body is poisoned and diseased by it.

Our blood is being constantly poisoned by the results of wearing out and breaking down of our muscles and organs. It is also being constantly clogged by the ashes of digestion.

It is the duties of the kidneys to filter these poisons out of the blood. They work without a moment's rest day and night, to do this. When they get sick, weak or sluggish they fail to do it.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills heal, strengthen and increase the natural power of the kidneys. Asparagus is a wonderful medicine for the kidneys. It is found in its best and most concentrated form in Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

You need Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills if your kidneys are weak or diseased.

Fifty cents per box, from all druggists, or enclose 50 cts in stamps or silver direct to the HOBB'S MEDICINE CO., Chicago San Francisco. Interesting and instructive book on Kidney, Health, and Blood Filtering, free.

E. A. BISHOP'S MOTHER.

The Venerable Lady Passed to Her Reward at Ashley, Ohio, Last Tuesday.

The following sketch of the life of Mrs. Bishop, mother of E. A. Bishop, who died at the old home near Ashley last Tuesday, is handed the STAR for publication:

"Malinda Bishop was born November 11, 1820, in Meigs county, O., and came to Delaware county when a small child with her mother, one brother and three sisters. They settled in the green woods on what is known as the school section, undergoing all the privations then attending a frontier life. Her maiden name was Malinda Burch. She was married in her 14th year to Elijah Bishop, September 6th, 1838, by whom was born seven children—four daughters and three sons, all living excepting the oldest daughter.

Mother experienced a hope in the Savior in the year 1843, and was baptized by Elder Martin and was received into the fellowship of the Westfield Primitive Baptist church, in which church she lived a faithful and devoted member, beloved by all who knew her. She was a kind and affectionate mother, ever setting a good example to her children and neighbors. She bore her great suffering of that dread disease, cancer, for two years with patience, and passed peacefully away.

"Her funeral was preached at the Marlborough church, in Delaware county, by Elders I. E. Sherwood and Lewis Thomas, to a large circle of friends and relatives, after which she was laid to rest in the Marlborough cemetery.

E. A. Bishop."

CHICKEN THIEVES ARRESTED.

William Adams and Jesse Swift Arrested at LaRue—Adams Escapes.

William Adams and Jesse Swift, two young men residing at LaRue, or in that vicinity, were arrested Friday night and charged with chicken stealing. They were taken to 'Squire Amerine, but for some reason a trial was not given them Friday night, and they were taken to the home of a man named White, where they were to be held over night.

Adams went up stairs into a room and undressed, taking off his clothes and going to bed. The watchman then left the door and Adams then raised a window and escaped, leaving his clothes behind. He has not been seen since.

A Caged Bird.

A Defiance special to the Cincinnati Enquirer relates that Della Bird well known here and who secured much notoriety lately by attempting suicide, was behind the bars at that place for being party to the attempted robbery of Charles Krotz, aged eighty, of that city.

Della first gained notoriety as the mistress of Marvin Koons, the notorious horsethief and outlaw.

Courteous Hints.

Perhaps there is no greater strain upon "neighborly feeling" than living next door to a poultry yard whose inmates are allowed to "run"—making exercise ground of the adjacent flower and vegetable gardens. A San Diego young lady who was subjected to this annoyance politely asked her neighbor to keep his pets at home. She asked it several times, and still no attention was paid to her grievance. Finally she hit upon an ingenious method of protecting herself.

She prepared grains of corn by tying to them with strong carpet thread small cards bearing the words, "Please keep your chickens at home," and distributed the grain about her flower beds.

The chickens came to feast as usual and greedily swallowed the corn, not perceiving the thread until the card was against their jaws. Then they could neither swallow the card nor rid themselves of the swallowed corn.

Twenty or thirty of the marauders ran home bearing the polite request to their culpable owner, who, struck with the method of the hint, promptly cut the threads and cooped up the birds.

This was forcible, but a delicate hint upon a like offense was conveyed from one aggrieved relative to another where stronger measures would have been out of place.

The suffering victim of hens was taken ill, and the perhaps unconscious offender slew his choicest bird and sent to the invalid. The invalid feasted thereon and sent back a message of thanks to the effect that the fowl was delicious and tasted of her violets.—Youth's Companion.

More Than Her Match.

"Poor thing," said the young woman with blond hair and dark eyebrows, "she lives very unhappily since she married a professional pugilist."

"Why," replied her friend, "she always seemed able to have the last word in every argument."

"Yes, that's what she finds it so hard to give up now."—Washington Star.

MUNYON

RECEIVES A VOLUNTARY TRIBUTE OF GRATITUDE FROM MR. GARHAM.

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

Of Eighteen Years' Duration Cured by Munyon's Improved Homeopathic Remedies.

Mr. Michael Garman, 723½ Broad street, Johnstown, Pa., says: "Eighteen years ago my rheumatism began in my knees and hips and finally spread all over my body in such a severe form that I had to use a cane to walk with. The pains in the shoulder also became so bad that it was agony to lie down. My wrists, shoulders and knees were continually swollen and I had to lay off work months at a time. I employed doctors without number and as to patent medicines I've taken barrels of them. Liniments I used until the flesh was raw, all to no avail. Pains would shoot through me, almost tearing my joints apart. Three days after beginning the use of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure I noticed decided benefit and in less than four weeks I was completely cured. Have not had an ache or pain since."

A Specific for Each Disease.

Professor Munyon puts up a separate remedy for every disease. His Rheumatism Cure never fails to relieve rheumatism in from one to three hours and cures in a few days. His Catarrh Cure positively cures catarrh. His dyspepsia Cure speedily cures all forms of stomach trouble. His Cold Cure cures the most severe cold in a few hours. The Munyon Remedies sold at all druggists, mostly 25 cents a bottle.

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

GEN. HARRISON ON THE PRESIDENCY.

The Ex-President Thinks a Chief Magistrate Should Not be Eligible to Re-election.

Ex-President Benjamin Harrison will discuss "The Presidential Office" very comprehensively in his "This Country of Ours" series in the forthcoming February Ladies' Home Journal. He will detail the provisions and methods of electing a Chief Magistrate, and will have much to say bearing upon the eligibility of a President for re-election: will have his views as to the length of the Presidential term, and express rather decided opinions relative to the annoyance to which Presidents are subjected from office-seekers. The article is practical, based upon experience and observation, and is very timely. General Harrison believes that the fears (expressed by the framers of our Constitution) that the power of the office is such as to enable an ambitious incumbent to secure an indefinite succession of terms have never been realized. "In practice the popular opinion has limited the eligibility of the President to one re-election. But some of our leading and most thoughtful public men have challenged the wisdom of the four-year term, and have advocated six years, usually accompanied with a prohibition of a second term. And unless some method can be devised by which a less considerable part of the four-year term must be given to hearing applicants for office and to making appointments, it would be wise to give the President, by extending the time, a better chance to show what he can do for the country. It must be admitted, also, that ineligibility to a second term will give to the Executive action greater independence. It seems unlikely, however, that any change in the Presidential term will be made unless some unexpected event should stir into action a thought that is now of a theoretical rather than a practical cast."

They Were Too Late.

The belated wayfarer was standing in the shadow of a building with both hands pointing heavenward while he gazed into the muzzle of a revolver. One footpad was holding the revolver where it would do the most good in case of an emergency and the other was going through the victim's pockets. The silence was so oppressive that the belated wayfarer finally felt obliged to speak.

"Think you are smart, don't you?" he said.

"We know our business," returned one of the footpads gruffly.

"Of course you do," said the belated wayfarer with something like a sneer. "You know that this is my pay day, I suppose?"

"Sure," replied the footpad. "That's why we laid for you."

"He ain't got but 65 cents, Bill," interrupted the one who had been searching the victim's pockets.

"Wot!" cried the other.

"That's right," said the belated wayfarer cheerfully.

"But you was paid today," insisted the man with the revolver.

"Right again," admitted the belated wayfarer in the same cheerful tone. "But somebody got in ahead of you, and you thought you were so all fired smart that I'll be hanged if I'm not glad of it."

"Somebody got your roll?"

"Yep."

"Who?"

"My wife came to the office after it this afternoon. Oh, you've got to get up mighty early to beat her."—Chicago Post.

What Interested Him.

"My boy," said the old man kindly, "you ought to be more methodical in personal matters. You spend more money than you think you do. You ought to keep an account book."

"What good would that do?" asked the boy.

"Why then you would know where the money went."

"P. s.," he said, "it isn't the money that's gone that interests me. It's the money that's left."—Chicago Post.

FROZEN TO THE RAIL.

A Wildcat Strangely Entrapped In Montana.

What is by long odds the best hunting story of the season comes from St. Regis, and the section foreman, Nels Thompson, who looks after the Snake track at that place, is the hero. It is probably the first case of its kind on record and establishes an interesting precedent in the killing of wildcats.

Last Thursday morning as Thompson and his gang of Scandinavians were pumping their hand car along the track on their way to their work, which that day was along the clay bluffs east of St. Regis, they were startled by the angry snarling of a wildcat ahead of them. They slowed up the car as they rounded the bluff, and a strange sight greeted their eyes. The morning was bitterly cold, and a fringe of ice bordered the banks of the St. Regis river, which rushed along just below the track. Broken ice and a wet trail up the bank showed that the cat had swam through the icy stream and explained his present predicament. For he certainly was in the gravest predicament in which ever a wildcat found himself. He was fastened firmly to one of the steel rails by one fore foot.

The supposition is that the cat had come through the river and leaped up the track embankment. His last jump brought one of his wet fore feet upon the rail, and it froze to the steel. There he was, held as fast as if in the jaws of a trap. The ground showed that he had struggled to free himself, but his efforts had been in vain.

A blow from a crowbar cracked his skull, and the victim of cold water was dead. It required a strong pull to detach the frozen foot from the rail, and when it did come patches of skin still adhered to the steel.—Anaconda Standard.

SNAKES IN WARFARE.

Novel Means For Destroying Property Adopted by Cuban Insurgents.

Confirmation has been received by the Cuban junta in New York of the burning of the Espana, Angelito and San Vicento, Moralea, Empetado, Colina and many other extensive sugar estates in Matanzas.

The insurgents are using hundreds of the maja and jubo snakes to assist them in reducing to ashes the sugar cane fields. The snakes are dipped in cans of crude petroleum grease. They are then set on fire and released in the canefields. The blazing reptiles dive under the dry leaves, which cover the ground to a depth of several feet at this time of the year, make at once for the heart of the plantation and run a distance of several hundred yards before they clear the fire from their bodies or are roasted to death.

The intensity of the heat causes the snakes to shoot through the cane like a streak of lightning, and they leave behind them a sheet of flame which spreads with wonderful rapidity. The sugar cane is full of juice and alcohol at this season, and the cane burns like torches, as rapidly as pine shavings.

While the cane is burning there is a constant roaring and popping sound, like the rattle of musketry fire. It proceeds from the bursting of the cane, caused by the rapid generation of gas from the heat. The sap from the cane exudes, boils and is quickly converted into alcohol, which feeds and keeps up the conflagration until every stick of cane on a plantation is burned.—New York Recorder.

WANTS PART OF THE EARTH.

And He Is Willing to Pay a Lawyer $5 to Get It.

Unique things are constantly coming to the surface among lawyers. One that has just cropped out is a man who is willing to spend $5 to obtain possession of a portion of the city of Pittsburg.

One of the prominent lawyers of Pittsburg and one who is accustomed to receive a good compensation for his ability and years of experience received a letter from a prospective client. It was dated at Nopella, Ills. The address on the envelope was as follows: "Mr. Postmaster, Pittsburg, Penna. Please hand this to some good attorney." The postmaster followed instructions, and this is what the attorney found:

DEAR SIR—As I understand there is a portion of your city that has been leased from a man by the name of Harris, a great many years ago. That Mr. Harris was my mother's great grandfather, and if you want the case please see if you can find the papers. We heard of them about four years ago, but have never made any attempt to look it up.

What I want you to do is to find out whether or not the land has been claimed, and if you can, find out whether the lease is still there or not. You can have the case.

I have $5 to spend on it as soon as I hear it is there. I will close, hoping you good success. I am your anxious friend.

Speaker Reed and His Wheel.

Speaker Reed was conversing with a Washington friend shortly after his return to the capital, and the conversation came around to bicycles.

"By the way, Mr. Speaker," inquired the friend, "did you bring your bicycle with you?"

"No," replied the speaker, as if thinking a great thought; "no, I did not."

"And why not? Washington is the paradise of bicyclers."

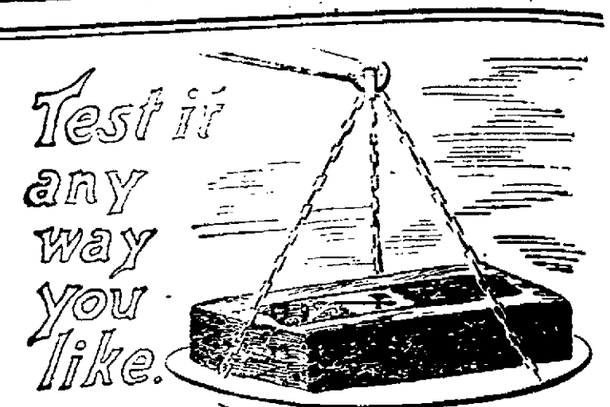

"Well," smiled the speaker, "I don't want to go through heaven that way. In any event, I would not ride a wheel in Washington."

"Why not?"

"Because," and the speaker spoke as thinking two great thoughts, "if I rode badly I should be condemned, and if I rode well I should be criticised."

MILLINERY NOTES.

The Old but Still Fashionable Violet Bows and Ruchings.

Tall and rather stiff feathers are now a common feature of millinery, and flowers are ubiquitous. Small blossoms cover the wide brims of hats and the small crowns of bonnets, especially violets, which have returned to popularity in full force and are as much worn this winter as they were last.

Close fitting felt hats, something on the English deer stalker style, are in vogue for hard wear and bad weather service. They are of various shades and have the brim turned up at the sides. A band of ribbon or velvet and quills compose the trimming.

Felt sailor shaped hats are this season ornamented with trimmings of a band of cream or white kid embroidered in colored silk and gold thread.

Large bows of flowered ribbon and ruchings of chiffon are fashionable adornments for hats, and a novelty in hat shapes is made entirely of a sort of braid consisting of interwoven strips of shot silk and threads of chenille.

White felt hats are worn for day dress occasions, such as at horses, receptions and matinees. They are often trimmed with white velvet, with the addition of flowers and a bit of fur. Sometimes a white velvet ruff, trimmed to match, accompanies the hat.

Violets are seen on bonnets, hats, gowns and fur garments and form independent collars and ruches by themselves. They are of many shades of mauve and purple and of various sizes. White and yellow violets are also used, but in far less quantity.

Wing shaped hat and bonnet ornaments and trimming, extending at the sides, are still the rule, although the fashion is not especially becoming or even pretty in itself.

Very long gloves are worn for evening occasions, and all colors from black to white are admissible, according to the costume they accompany. Shoes and slippers of pale tan suede are again in vogue for balls and full dress occasions.

An illustration is given of a jacket of mastic cloth. It is close fitting and double breasted, fastening with two rows of pearl buttons. The tailor collar is extended in two points, which button down on the body of the jacket under the revers. Pockets are let in at the dart seams. The sleeves, which are in one piece, are finished at the wrist by a stitched band with a button. The hat is of black felt, trimmed with black satin ribbon and ostrich plumes.

JESSIE CHOLLET.

He Had Suffered.

Wiggles—People wouldn't talk now so glibly about war if they could all remember the awful days of thirty odd years ago. I really think there were some terrific experiences then.

Waggles—I should say there were! Why, I couldn't buy a cigar for a box of cigars that you could buy today for $4.50.—Somerville Journal.

I ... a bad day's work if I ... with at least $1,000. I ... there but bank work ... there.

... pal I ever had, I ... named Coleman. We ... 15 months. We ... week $15,000 in Wall ... by speculation. ... day sneak stealing. ... of it made it easy and comparatively safe. Coleman could move quicker and quieter, I believe, than any other man that ever lived. Of course I knew every nook and corner of every bank in New York. I had at one time and another accounts with every one of them. That kind of work requires big capital. For years I was known to every bank on Wall street as a heavy depositor and was never suspected to be a thief. The way we would work a bank would be this: We would do business with a bank until we knew all about it. We knew just where to lay our hands on all the big money. We would know just what kind of "screws" was used on every gate and door. By "screws" I mean keys, of course. We would get acquainted with some of the bank officers. We knew just when every man of them went to lunch and how long he was apt to stay. We knew, once we got inside the counters, every step we could take without being seen.

I was the "steal," and when we went into steal I would engage the teller in conversation. He knew me only as a depositor and investor. Sometimes I would say my sister had two or three hundred thousand dollars she wanted me to invest for her, and that would engage his attention. Sometimes I could send him into the cashier's office to consult. If he was gone beyond 30 seconds that was often time enough for Coleman to unlock the gate, slip to the safe, nail the stuff and get out. Of course I would stay and renew the negotiations. Often I would actually invest with them some of the money Coleman had sneaked. You guess the nerve it takes not to get excited or appear as if anything has happened. About the only time I got a little rattled was one day when I was working with "Dutch Heinrich," who was a brother-in-law of John Davis, the green goods man who was killed by a sucker a few years ago. He nailed $35,000 in one bundle and got away with it. I saw what it was and he didn't have the tenth part of a second to get out and away. I thought they had him nailed sure, and I didn't want to lose all that stuff. But he got away all right.

One thing we used to depend on was the fact that banks would seldom squeal if they were hit hard for fear of disturbing the confidence of their depositors. That was one reason why it was so much safer to turn big tricks than little ones.

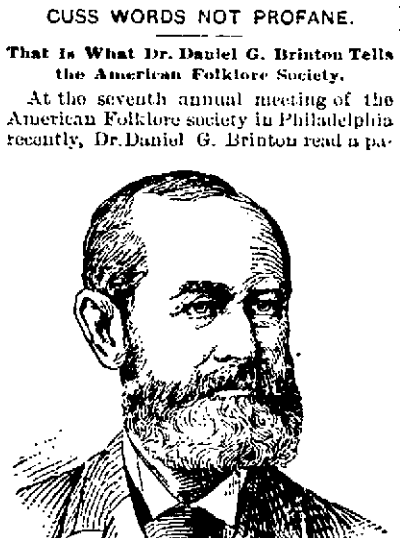

The last few years I haven't worked at anything but green goods business. When I was younger and could see better, I did "inside" work, but my eyes went back on me and my hands lost their cunning, and so the old man was used as a send—that is, I met the suckers at the depots and steered them against the "office." I used to make about $100 a day in the green goods business, but I never got home with over $20 or $25 of it. It was still a case of faro bank and hot touches. I never could refuse a man who asked a loan. I haven't any idea how much I have loaned—thousands upon thousands of dollars. Faro banks got at least $1,000,000 out of me.

I am an old man now—in my sixty-ninth year. I have stolen into the millions, and all I have had for it is some little excitement and seven terms in prison. I have been locked up for 15 years altogether.

CUSS WORDS NOT PROFANE.

That Is What Dr. Daniel G. Brinton Tells the American Folklore Society.

At the seventh annual meeting of the American Folklore society in Philadelphia recently, Dr. Daniel G. Brinton read a paper calculated to quiet the conscience of the chronic cusser and promote the picturesqueness of the great American language.

"American cuss words," he said, "do not mean profanity, but they mean by-words, and their mission is to give vent to the excited emotions of human beings, and are meant to convey the idea of profanity without being profane.

"Expressions like 'by George,' 'great Scott,' 'geewhillikens' are undoubtedly modifications of the names of God and the Saviour. The same may be said of 'by jingo,' 'Gehosophat,' 'by gosh.'

"'Geewhillikens' reminds me of the Bowery cuss word, 'hully gee,' which is doubtless from the words 'Holy God.' Cuss words thus used, through alliteration, assonance and paronymy, are sacred in names without using the words themselves.

"The expression 'what t'ell' is undoubtedly from 'what the hell.'" Mr. Brinton used no substitute for the word, and the audience laughed loudly at the expression. "Dem or darn," he continued, "are other cuss words. Lord Melbourne used to be very partial to the word 'damn,' and on one occasion, when he used it continually in the presence of Sydney Smith, the dean rebuked him, by saying with every few words of his talk to the cussing lord, 'shovel and tongs.' Lord Melbourne became disgusted and wanted to know what the minister meant by such an idiotic expression. The minister said there was as much sense in his expression as there was in his lordship's 'damn.' Among a series of cuss words that have no meaning are 'blas'ed' and 'I'll be blowed.'"

Two Unarmed Girls Kill a Wolf.

While out on horseback after cattle some distance north of Harold, S. D., Misses Mary Marso and Emma Shultz, aged 18 and 20 years respectively, sighted six wolves and promptly gave chase to them. After a hard race one of the animals was run down and Miss Schultz dismounted, armed with a heavy strap and buckle, to dispatch it. The creature showed fight and caught the girl's hand in his mouth. Her companion came to her assistance, and after a lively skirmish Miss Schultz contrived to get his wolfship down and hold him while her friend tied his feet. The pair then pounded him to death, brought him into town, and received the bounty offered by the state for the scalp.

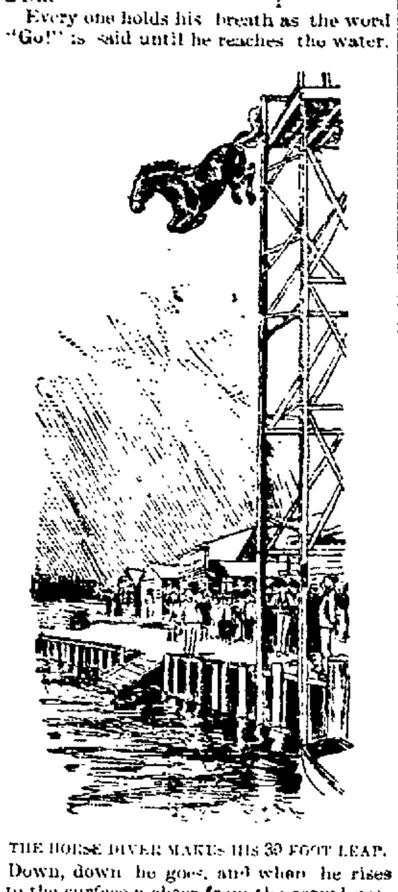

A DIVING HORSE.

An Equine Lofty Tumbler Makes a Sensation In Seattle.

They have a strange attraction at one of the popular pleasure resorts in Seattle. A horse leaps 30 feet down into the deep water of Lake Washington and swims to the shore. Thousands of people congregate to witness the wonderful and amusing performance.

A big platform is constructed on the edge of the wharf, which is just wide enough for the horse and two men. As the horse ascends to the platform he seems to be in his delight, and, standing at the top, he tosses his head around to look at the crowd with a very proud air, and one can almost imagine him saying in his egotism: "Look at me! I am the only horse in the world that can perform such a feat!"

Every one holds his breath as the word "Go!" is said until he reaches the water.

THE HORSE DIVER MAKES HIS 30 FOOT LEAP.

Down, down he goes, and when he rises to the surface a cheer from the crowd goes up, and he at once begins to swim toward the shore, and as he reaches it he leaps up among the crowd, a glossy, black, beautiful animal. His master, who is waiting for him, grasps his bridle and immediately starts him off on a run and keeps him moving until he is thoroughly dry.

When the water is very cold, he often shows signs of weakening and needs a great deal of urging before he will make the leap. At such a time one cannot help but feel it is a cruel sport. The cold water somewhat bewilders him, and he does not seem to know in which direction he shall swim and often finds himself under the dock. At such times a man rows out in a boat and leads him to shore.

A LITTLE MAZEPPA.

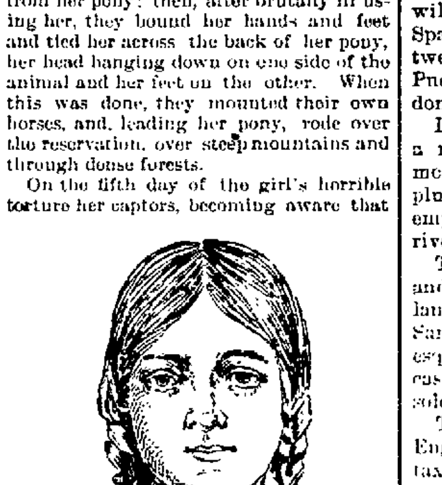

For Seven Days Mary Freelon Was Strapped to the Back of Her Pony.

The shadow of the gallows lies darkly upon Puck-el-petsy and Chu-nu-was-ket, Indian desperadoes from the Okanogan reservation, for their horrible treatment of a 12-year-old half breed named Mary Freelon. She is the child of a white man named James Freelon, who died some years ago, and of the daughter of Ka-mal-tel-hiah, the aged chief of the Sans Poil tribe of Indians. Under the law of the state of Washington death is the penalty for the crime committed by the prisoners.

One morning little Mary rode up into the hills not far from her home, near the mouth of the Sans Poil river, for the purpose of shooting grouse. As she was passing through a lonely ravine Puck-el-petsy and Chu-nu-was-ket sprang from their hiding place in the bushes, seized the bridle and her gun and ordered her to dismount.

The girl screamed with terror and struck at the ruffians with her whip, but they laughed in her face and dragged her from her pony; then, after brutally ill using her, they bound her hands and feet and tied her across the back of her pony, her head hanging down on one side of the animal and her feet on the other. When this was done, they mounted their own horses, and, leading her pony, rode over the reservation, over steep mountains and through dense forests.

On the fifth day of the girl's horrible torture her captors, becoming aware that pursuers were on their trail, strapped her half nude form lengthwise on the pony and turned him loose, while they rode off in another direction. Mary had refused to eat any of the food offered her by the ruffians, and she was so weak that she fainted and remained in a semicomatose condition, hardly feeling the scratches and cuts she received from briers and branches of trees as the pony browsed and grazed in the woods.

At noon of the seventh day after the abduction an Indian woman named Susan discovered the pony and its unconscious burden. The woman unbound the child and carried her on her horse to her wigwam, two miles away, where she succeeded in restoring her to consciousness. Two days later the pursuing party found her and took her to the home of the old chief, her grandfather, where, after flickering for many days between life and death, she was restored to health and strength again.

A posse of Indian scouts and police pursued and caught Puck-el-petsy and Chu-nu-was-ket, and they are now lodged in the Spokane jail awaiting trial at the April term of the United States district court.

NOW A NEW REVOLT.

PUERTO RICO MAY SHAKE OFF THE BONDS OF SPAIN.

Some Interesting Information About the Picturesque Little Island That Is Tired of Spanish Oppression—Plans of the Revolutionists—Their Grievances.

There is a likelihood that Spain will soon have another rebellion on her hands. The inhabitants of Puerto Rico, tired of Spanish rule and encouraged by the partial success of their Cuban neighbors, now threaten to revolt after enduring oppression for 400 years.

Puerto Rico is the only colony besides Cuba that remains of all the great possessions Spain once had in the western hemisphere. It is only a little island, the smallest of the Greater Antilles, and the farthest east of the group. It is separated from Cuba by the island of Haiti, whose people have thrown off the yoke and enjoy the freedom of a republic.

Puerto Rico is almost rectilinear in shape. It is about 100 miles in length from east to west and about 40 miles in width. Yet on this little island there are over 800,000 inhabitants. Just what percentage of the population is ready to take up arms against Spain and fight for freedom it is difficult to estimate.

There is no doubt, however, about the prevalence of the anti-Spanish feeling. The people there are born with a hatred for Spain that increases with their years. Their numbers may be many, but their resources are small. All the arms on the island are owned by the Spanish, who control the sale of guns and ammunition.

The Puerto Rican revolutionary party which was recently formed in New York purposes to supply this deficiency. At the first meeting an impromptu collection was taken and over $500 contributed. The revolutionists are now organizing branches in other cities, and expect to raise enough money in a short time to send well equipped expeditions to the island with large supplies of arms and ammunition. Then, when the word is given for the revolt, the patriots will be well armed.

Dr. J. Julio Henna of New York, who has been elected president of the revolutionary party, says that the Puerto Ricans and the Cubans are to combine their resources in this country and help each other, at the same time dividing Spain's attention.

"Money is coming in rapidly for the purchase of arms and ammunition," he said. "Like Cubans, Puerto Ricans are compelled to suffer the burden of an absurd and heavy taxation. Our people are downtrodden and enslaved. Outrages by the Spanish government upon the people are of common occurrence. Our police is composed of ex-convicts sent from Spain, and our people are subjected to gross outrages at the hands of these men, who are invested with a power that makes them petty tyrants. We realize our strength now. We, too, will fight for independence, and with Spain's waning energies divided between the two countries Cubans and Puerto Ricans hope to achieve their freedom."

It is a fair land, this little island, and a rich one. In the interior are several mountain ranges from whose slopes plunge down over 1,000 streams that empty into the ocean. Most of these rivers are navigable part of their length.

There are 40 or more towns and cities, and a railroad almost encircles the island. The principal port and capital is San Juan. This is a historic and picturesque old city. It is defended by Morro castle, where a garrison of some 4,000 soldiers is maintained.

The bulk of Puerto Rico's trade is with England, but owing to heavy duties and taxes it is carried on in Spanish ships. Spain comes next in rank as a customer, and the United States is third on the list.

The productiveness of this small colony is surprising. The average annual yield of coffee is 15,600 tons; of sugar, 67,000 tons, of tobacco, 7,000,000 pounds—astonishing figures. Besides this, many tropical fruits are exported as well as some cotton. The tobacco is said to excel that of Cuba, and the cotton is very valuable. There are gold, copper, iron and lead deposits there, but the mines are not worked. In 1893 Puerto Rico sent to the United States over $2,000,000 worth of sugar and coffee and fruit to the value of about $3,000,000. We sent them in return flour, butter, cheese, codfish, iron and steel to the value of over $3,500,000, besides 2,650 tons of machinery and 11,000 tons of coal.

Taxation is the curse of the country. The inhabitants are taxed almost every time they turn around. They are taxed, in fact, when they go from one city to the other. Travelers have to pay $4 to land on the island. The taxes on foreign ships are particularly heavy and unjust.

The island is governed wholly by Spaniards, who are sent from Madrid. Every petty officer is a Spanish tyrant in the eyes of the people. This horde of officeholders the Puerto Ricans have to support as well as furnish money to carry on war against their neighbors, the Cubans. No wonder they are ripe for rebellion.

NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND—the bad habits and early vices of young men and their disastrous consequences. Young men and old men, those who suffer from nervous debility and exhaustion, the wasting away of the vital strength and power from hidden drains or intemperate habits can readily find relief for body and mind by writing the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y. They employ a full staff of physicians and Specialists, who treat at a distance by correspondence or at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, all this class of diseases. Those who suffer from low spirits, irritable temper, a "broken-down" nervous system, and such distressing symptoms as backache, dizziness, shooting pains in head or chest and indigestion, sexual excesses or abuses, all the result of exhausting diseases or drains upon the system,—will find a permanent cure after taking the special prescriptions sent them from the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute. This association of medical men have prepared a book written in plain but chaste language, treating of the nature, symptoms and curability, by home treatment, of such diseases. The World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., will, on receipt of this notice, with 10 cents (in stamps for postage) mail, sealed in plain envelope, a copy of this useful book. It should be read by every young man, parent and guardian in the land.

The Key to the Situation—if you suffer from Sick or Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, or any derangement of the stomach, liver and bowels—is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively, they cleanse, renovate and regulate the entire system. One little "Pellet" for a gentle laxative—three for a cathartic. They're purely vegetable and perfectly harmless; these tiny, sugar-coated granules of Dr. Pierce.

Canadian Butter In England.

In the days when Denmark was not the power in trade it is now, and when competition over 12,000 miles of ocean was not dreamed of, Canada had a fair portion of the butter trade then existing in England. But when the people there thought they could do just as they liked, and sent across stuff which was good enough when nothing else could be got, it was of course refused here as soon as we had so many sources of supply to turn to where a good article could be obtained. Shippers in Montreal have blinded themselves to the change that has come over the trade and have persisted in placing butter bought cheap in the summer in cold storage, to await the advent of better prices, and have then shipped it when the bloom has disappeared and all its connection with the pastures of the Dominion has been effaced.

The natural result has been that merchants here have refused to buy it save as a substitute for train oil, and the trade has dwindled to miserable proportions. Now, as it would seem, too late, they have awakened to a sense of the big mistake they have been making, and shipments are coming forward in cool chambers, whence they are transferred from railway refrigerator cars. On all of the new supply a bonus of 1 cent a pound is paid by the province of Quebec, the government being responsible for the railway and steamship arrangements. This has to be fresh made creamery butter, and the design is to re-establish Canada's credit on our markets. Should the return be in proportion to the outlay, other provinces will no doubt follow the lead and Canada once again become prominent in our returns.—Chambers' Journal.

Two Dynamite Adventures.

The Milwaukee Sentinel reports a conversation with a gentleman of that city who was formerly employed in the Calumet and Hecla copper mine. While thus engaged, he witnessed numerous tragedies and some exceedingly narrow escapes. Miners, of all men, need to be men of steady nerves and ready wits. Two of the best of this Milwaukee man's stories have to do with dynamite.

A blast was to be made, and a man was sent down the shaft to place the dynamite and light the fuses. He had just finished this work—there were 14 sticks of dynamite—when to his horror he saw the car start upward. A wrong signal had been given, and up shot the car.

It was all a question of a few seconds. There was no time to summon the car back. He set to work pulling out the fuses. Perhaps there would be time for that. And happily there was, but as he drew the last one he fell in a dead faint.

Once I saw a fellow workman save his life by making a good catch. It was fortunate for him that he had played baseball in his time.

He was standing at the bottom of a shaft waiting for a bucketful of dynamite sticks that were being let down to him. The bucket was part way down when he saw it strike against some obstruction and turn partly over. Out fell one of the sticks. He watched it falling in a zigzag course—a messenger of instant death. When it struck the hard bottom, there would be a tremendous explosion and an end of the miner.

But it did not strike the hard bottom. Like a player on the ballfield, the workman put up his hands and caught the stick as deftly as if such a trick were only an everyday affair.

Piles of people have piles, but De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. When promptly applied it cures scalds and burns without the slightest pain. Flocken's Drug Store.

It Was Business.

"These goods are marked down one-half in order to clear out old stock," read the sign in the store window.

The retired tradesman sighed as he saw it. "Life is full of deceits," he said reflectively, "and especially business life. Now, if those goods really were old stock, do you suppose they'd be marked down?"

"Why not?" said I.

"Because the firm never could get rid of them. If you ever go into trade, John, and find yourself possessed of a lot of old stock that you want to get rid of, the thing to do is to mark up the price instead of marking it down."

"How so?" said I.

"When I was in business," he replied, "I remember one time we had a lot of fancy shirt fronts—gaudy things, you know, moons and stars on them, and all that. They were in wretched taste and we could not sell them. So, after they had lain around awhile, we marked the price up one-half and stuck them in the window as the very latest Paris importation. If they had been cheap, nobody would have had them. But the average buyer judges almost wholly of value by price. So when we put the price up, everybody thought they must be something extra, and so we sold the whole lot inside of three days. There's tricks in all trades, John."—Buffalo Express.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends an take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and a ways gives satisfaction." How a Nettle Stings.

Every one has probably made acquaintance with the irritating, if not highly poisonous, character of the nettle stings, though they may never have troubled to examine the beautiful little apparatus by which the poison is introduced to their blood.

It is probable that if they were to make microscopical examination of a nettle hair just after they have been stung, they would be scarcely in the right frame of mind to discover any beauty in its mechanism; but it exists for all that.

The leaf and stem of a nettle, it will be found, are literally clothed with erect hollow hairs. If one of these hairs be viewed under a microscope, it will be seen that its free end, after tapering to a very fine degree of slimness, finishes at a little knob, while in the other direction, after gradually becoming more robust, it suddenly expands into a large bulb corresponding to the poison gland of the adder.

The point of the hair is very brittle, and contact with the skin causes the end to snap off, leaving a hollow needle point, which readily pierces the cuticle, and, pressing upon the bulb at the other end, the poison is forced through the central channel and inflames the blood.

The tender handed who stroke the nettle are stung for their pains, because their gentleness has only served to break the brittle points and render them fit for piercing; but the rough handed break the hairs at the thickest parts, where they are too stout to prick.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE INDUSTRIAL YEAR.

Now that nearly all of Marion's manufacturing industries have held their annual meetings and reported for 1895, it is interesting to observe that the year, despite so many unfavorable conditions, has been a most gratifying one. Of the large concerns the Huber company splendidly heads the list with a handsome profit account, in keeping with its growth and aggressive business policy. In the same line of trade the Marion Manufacturing company made a very satisfactory showing in its October report. The Steam Shovel company, notwithstanding the prostrated condition of railroad extensions and improvements, reported earnings and profits that were equally gratifying to stockholders and the people who value manufacturing success. In the lime and stone trade, a feature of Marion industries only recently valued at actual importance, the year was the best in the history of the business. Lime output and stone quarried and shipped very greatly exceeded any previous year. The big Norris & Christian company and the Evans plants count up very acceptable profit accounts. In the newer and less heavily capitalized industries, the showing is creditable. The Malleable company is working surely to successful position The Tool works know their first year presages a prosperous second and it is destined to attain high rank. The delivery wagon trade, given a wider scope and greater excellence by the National people, has justified the faith in accomplishing great things. Wholesale institutions, incorporated and private, have prospered, and the corporate establishments and industries that are local in their business have been eminently successful. Specific mention has been made of those above because they are concerns that bring the outside world contributors to Marion wealth. The adding of from a third to a half million dollars of net profits, brought to Marion to add to our wealth is a matter of striking import. It is a most important factor in making greater attainments for Marion. Prosperous at home, trading among ourselves, the contributions of profit from foreign trade enrich our people and afford the means for greater and better things. We may be proud of manufacturing Marion.

The art supplement with today's STAR is an exact copy of a late painting by Elbridge A. Burbank, of Chicago. The same supplement was the rage of the holiday season in Chicago and Boston, where the colored lad who posed for the picture was exhibited, respectively in Chicago and Boston, in show windows, holding a great American Beauty rose, whose fragrance he was drinking. It having proved the art supplement hit of the year, the STAR thought it none too good for its readers. It is strikingly out of the ordinary.

The Bowery gang has yet something to learn. Down at Marysville they rob a man and then throw him under the wheels of a moving train to prevent his asking any foolish questions. In this connection it is worth observing that the worse elements of Marion are not on the Bowery, not just now any bow.

That the Journal-Gazette people of Logan county aren't superstitious is evidenced by the fact that they launch their new daily, the "Logan Daily Journal," Monday, Jan 13

The Dayton Times admits that the eastern route's chances of securing the ship canal are in danger and that the Marion route is favored.

Kenton exchanges refer to their street roller as "Mr. W. Elephant." As a companion in misfortune Marion sends her condolences.

NOT BUYING BONDS

No Marion Banks Will Subscribe to the Popular Bond Sale.

The New York World, which is conducting a striking and patriotic campaign against the Morgan bond syndicate and doing its share to make the government's popular sale of bonds a success, telegraphed the Marion banks today to know to what amount they would subscribe for bonds. A couple of the banks answered stating they would buy none, the others that sent no answer was the same as a negative message

This attitude of Marion banks toward the bond issue is due neither to lack of funds, want of patriotism nor scarcity of gold The simple truth is that Marion is so active and so prosperous that there is no idle capital here worth the name. There is a constant and healthful demand for money, and Marion bankers and moneyed men find it more profitable to respond to local loans at 8 per cent. than to subscribe to government bonds at 2, 3 or 4 per cent.

The gold and gold certificates in Marion banks and the public treasury range somewhere from $60,000 to $75,000. It is difficult to obtain a close estimate. The bankers are of one accord in saying that they pay out gold coin as rapidly as they can get it accepted During a part of December, when ready cash reached a low stage, gold was put upon the pay desks of banks and paid out with great difficulty. Nearly every check-bearer protested a preference for currency, and the few thousand dollars of coin that was circulating got back to the banks and public treasury almost instantly The estimate of gold above given doesn't include the reserve in the "old socks" that serve as home depositories.

Nervous

People often wonder why their nerves are so weak; why they get tired so easily, why they start at every slight but sudden sound; why they do not sleep naturally; why they have frequent headaches, indigestion and

Palpitation of the Heart.

The explanation is simple. It is found in that impure blood which is continually feeding the nerves upon refuse instead of the elements of strength and vigor. In such condition opiate and nerve compounds simply deaden and do not cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla feeds the nerves pure, rich, red blood, gives natural sleep, perfect digestion, self-control, vigorous health, and is the true remedy for all nervous troubles

IT'S NOT PRACTICAL

RAILROAD MEN SAY THAT GALION WILL NOT GET THE DIVISIONS

The Talk About Galion Getting the Chicago and Erie Terminus Not Believed by Railroad Men—They Explain Why It Is Not a Practical Point for It.

The STAR today interviewed a number of railroad men in regard to the report of the Chicago and Erie division terminal going to Galion The employes without a single exception replied that they did not take any stock in it, and would not until they saw the yards being moved That it is not practical, is their reason for not believing the rumor

They are of the belief that for a time a portion of the business may possibly go to Galion, but that within a year or two years at the most that all which is at Galion will come here. In the first place it is not considered practical to keep up two large yards so close together The company could get along without the yards at Galion, but they could not abandon the yards here. There is a certain amount of interchange business that must be attended to at this place, even if not a pound of freight traffic is given the road from Marion. This will keep two or three switch engines busy most of the time, and a large yard force with a yardmaster and several telegraph operators. There are certain crews that are obliged to lay over here, and if the business was taken to Galion it would greatly increase the expense, but if the Galion business was brought here it would decrease it It would even up the divisions, and in the time between Marion and Kent and between Huntington and Marion there would be but five minutes difference This has been figured out and goes to show just where the matter stands.

This statement has been gleaned from all of the officials of the Erie in the city, all practical men. At present a yard office is being erected in the C. and E. yards If the terminal was to be taken to Galion this would have been stopped, or at least the employes of the road think it would. There are many other things that point toward the report as an absurd one, but then one can never tell what a railroad company will do, and Marion can only hope that the Erie will see that the city gets the best of it, for Marion has done much for the Erie

Here's an interesting experiment. Put one silver or paper dollar in your pocket (two halves or four quarters will do) and go to J. E Rhoads' shoe house and see what a valuable pair of shoes you can get for that dollar. It's mighty interesting. 92-t2

THE JURY OUT

In the Tonguet Case—Much Interest Being Shown.

The Tonguet case has been attracting much attention for the last day or two, and the court room has been filled daily, principally by residents of Agosta and vicinity.

The evidence was all in Friday night and this morning the argument was taken up W. E Scofield opening for the state, followed by J. F. McNeal for the defense, and Prosecuting Attorney Mouser closing the argument for the state

About 11.30 o'clock this morning Judge Norris charged the jury and Sheriff Shaw took the jury, as a body to Fies & Ballentine's for dinner, after which he conducted the jurymen back to the jury room

All the afternoon the court room was well filled with spectators awaiting the coming in of the jury, and as the hands of the clock moved around the crowd increased though the jury was not in at the time of going to press

THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER.

The other night Dr H. L. Uhler was relating some of his experiences while attending college If there was ever a jolly lot of fellows it is a lot of students at a medical college They are hard workers but don't believe in all work and no play. While the medical students are good fellows, they are adverse to seeing their names in the papers. Their love for newspaper mention stops when it comes to the codes of ethics of their profession. The doctor was relating the experience of a press reporter, who had given his paper a sensational story in regard to some body-snatching, who dropped into the college one evening, attired in fine raiment, to gather something on the sensational order for his paper The students discovered his identity, and shortened his life for him. They passed the fellow around the ampitheatre, dropped him frequently, tore his clothes and threatened to hang him. He finally escaped, and it is needless to say that no more sensational reports were published in his paper in regard to that particular college

As every one knows, Mayor Nichols is a total abstainer from all intoxicants The mayor in giving one of his little curtain lectures the other morning to a prisoner advised him to "stop drinking, and then related that he had at one time indulged slightly himself, but when he reached the age of twenty-four found it to be nonsense and stopped. That was twenty-two years ago, and since that time he has not touched a drop of anything that was intoxicating, and he advises all of his prisoners to follow his example and watch the results.

He dropped in here one cold day and secured work at the Huber shop He branched out to be a sport and opened up a gambling house. He used to delight in telling tales of former wealth, of mansions, trips on the road, and his stories are often related by the boys. He removed from here to Columbus and from his appearance is now on the easy side of the street. Lew now sports several diamonds of large size, is fat and jolly, and tells the boys that he has a nice account in one of the Columbus banks to his credit, with some real estate to fall back on.

The Misses Ella Carson and Nellie Coonfare, the afternoon operators at the Central Union Telephone exchange, had a visitor the other afternoon, who staggered into the room and announced that he was from Galion, and asked to be connected with Galion. His breath, maudlin and general appearance convinced them that he had been connected with a brewery previous to his advent into the exchange He sat down on a chair and was soon fast asleep The noise that he made in falling asleep caused the drops to fall on the switch board His snores could be heard all over the building The operators became frightened and were afraid that he would not awake, but the Galion office was finally secured, and with great difficulty he was aroused from his maudlin slumber, and he succeeded in propelling himself, on unsteady legs, into the booth, where he was enabled to tell his girl in Galion what a glorious time he was having over here in Marion.

AGOSTA MILLING CO.

JOHN BAIN, JR., APPOINTED RECEIVER THIS MORNING

And Ordered To Take Charge of It—The Liabilities Are $17,000 and the Assets About the Same—Receiver's Bond $15,000

John Bain, Jr., was this morning appointed receiver of the Agosta Milling company, of Agosta by Judge Norris of the court of common pleas.

Last Thursday afternoon Wm Rusler president of the company, by his attorney, J. A. Wolford, took judgment against the company in the local common pleas court on a cognovit note in the sum of $1565, with interest at 8 per cent. from that date.

On the same date the same attorney secured a judgment against the company in the same court in favor of Enos Irey for $391.40 with interest at 8 per cent. from date

At the time of the taking of the judgments William Rusler filed a motion that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the company's assets, assigning his reasons therefore, and filed a motion that he would ask for the appointment of such receiver this morning

About 10 o'clock this morning, during a recess taken in the Tonguet trial, Judge Norris heard the motion and appointed John Bain, Jr., of Agosta, as receiver, as above stated and fixed his bond at $15,000.

In a conversation with the parties interested it was gleaned by a STAR scribe that the liabilities will run up to about $17,000 and that the mill property is valued at $15,000, although it may not be worth that amount now, owing to the general depreciation of property.

The causes of the failure are of long standing and the principal cause may be stated to be an old debt which has been carried by the company for years, the payment of the interest on which ate up all the profits.

The hope is expressed that the affairs of the company may be so satisfactorily closed up that the mill may be put upon a paying basis

TOWN TOPICS

It is a pleasure to note the fact that the front of the Evan's block is up and a beautiful structure it is. In the opera house, the Darmody and Evans blocks, the city may well take pride While the styles of architecture radically differ, they are all beautiful and in agreeable contrast to some of the structures which have been erected in the last five or ten years.

The Mirror bemoans the fact that a high class paper like the STAR should print an item, like the sketch concerning a young man's experience with a hymnal band, which appeared in the columns of this paper one week ago, and then our contemporary proceeds to give the sketch in full. Well, we thought the sketch was all right, but if it wasn't fit to appear in the STAR, there is consolation in the thought that it has found its proper level at last.

There will be quite a run of social gaieties in the near future. Monday night Miss Iva Fisher entertains a party of friends at cards at her beautiful home on west Center street. Tuesday evening the invitations, which were issued today, say, the Mask and Wig club will give its entertainment at the McNeal home on west Center street. Thursday evening the Night Owls and their friends will dance at the old rink on north State street, to the music of the Marion Grand orchestra. There will also be the Presbyterian baby show with select music by the same orchestra, to say nothing of the show to be given by St. Agnes Guild of St Paul's Episcopal church.

A business man complains of the facilities for getting mail from the post office in the evening at the carrier's delivery window and wants to know why a rail in the shape of a U can not be placed at the window to prevent people from crowding past the line and ahead of those who have been patiently waiting their turn. He says that boys and girls and men that don't know any better crowd up to the window regardless of those waiting and also intimates that young women who know better but don't think—or care, it may be—frequently are the most selfish of any in this regard and not only crowd ahead and ask for their own mail but also ask for Susie's and Jennie's and Bessie's and Carrie's and their sisters and cousins up to the forty-second degree

There is a new kind of a checker game afloat. One of the most popular, handsome and gifted young belles in the eastern part of the city was entertaining a gentleman friend the other evening. Along about 11 o'clock the young lady's father came home and was passing through the hall when the daughter called him into the parlor. The father came in and, taking a comfortable chair, proceeded to enter into a conversation with the young man. Whether the daughter thought he was monopolizing too much of the young man's attention or whether she had two or three little thinklets of her own to express in private to her friend is not known Anyway she remarked to her father, "Papa, we're playing checkers It's your move." And the father departed and it was fully an hour after that when the neighbors heard the front gate creak and the firm, even tread, on the sidewalk, of the young man going forward

NOW 99 YEARS OLD.

Mrs. Grinnell Credits Her Vigorous Old Age to Paine's Celery Compound.

It is an uncommon thing to learn of persons reaching the age of Mrs. Emyle Hyde Grinnell, and years of good health such as hers, come only to those who make use of the very best means of keeping well.

No one will wonder that the bright-eyed old lady, whose mind today is as alert and clear as ever, should be anxious for others to try Paine's Celery compound.

Mrs. Emyle Hyde Grinnell was born in Bennington, Vt., July 7, 1796, and is today living with her granddaughter, the wife of Martin Fowler, of Colchester, Vt., a beautiful town near Fort Ethan Allen. Her father was a farmer and hotel keeper, and she lived upon the farm until her marriage. Mrs. Grinnell has none of the infirmities of old age. She rises at daylight, works about the house and when the weather will permit walks out doors. Her eyesight is so good that she threads a needle and spends many hours crocheting and doing fancy work. She keeps abreast of the times and is remarkably well informed upon many subjects. She declares that she does not feel any older than she has for years, and if people half her age enjoyed such good health as she they would consider themselves fortunate. She has seven children, four boys and three girls, two of whom are living today

Mrs. Grinnell writes:

COLCHESTER, Vt., Oct. 11, 1895

Paine's Celery compound has been my health preserver during the last few years. Whenever I have an ache or a pain a few doses of this medicine gives me relief and strength. Few women, even though much younger than I, enjoy as good health, for my appetite is natural, my sleep refreshing, and I can walk quite a distance without feeling tired. People are surprised at my vigorous appearance and activity, which I believe, is the result of my using Paine's celery compound. It has cured me of constipation, and is of great help to me when over-tired

Gratefully yours,

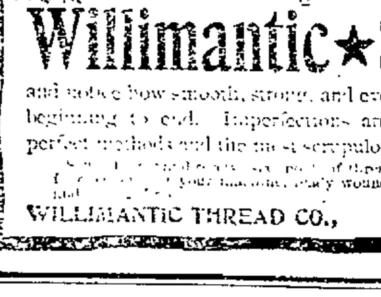

MRS. EMYLE HYDE GRINNELL.

Paine's celery compound is especially valuable for recruiting the strength and spent energies of men and women advanced in years. It is the one preparation considered worthy the name of a true nerve food and blood remedy by physicians throughout the country It is prescribed by them in every state in the Union to tone up the system, regulate the nerves and restore health and strength.

Nothing in the past has ever approached it in power of building up weakened nerve tissues and giving strength to the tired body. In severe cases of persistent headaches, dyspepsia, neuralgia and sleeplessness, due to nervous feebleness, Paine's celery compound has a record of rapid and lasting cures that embraces every city and town in the wide sweep of the United States.

Its remarkable power over disease lies in its active replacing of worn-out parts by new, healthy ones, and in its healing and purifying action among the most minute tissues of the body It searches out the weak parts at once, and sets to work to build them up The tired body feels the strengthening effects of Paine's celery compound forthwith.

Give the nerves a chance to recover, and the entire body will regain its health and strength. Take Paine's celery compound.

ON WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The Irving Society Will Give An Entertainment—School Matters.

The Irving Literary society of the High school has decided to give an entertainment on Feb 22, at 8 p. m. The entertainment will be an elaborate affair, and will be held in the High school auditorium. The public is invited and a small admission fee will be charged. The profits of the entertainment are to go toward adding new books to the High school library. It is certainly a very good cause.

The three literary societies of the High school gave their first entertainments of the year Friday afternoon and they were all very interesting. Quite a number of visitors were present, and the members of the societies are enthusiastic in their interest.

The next meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Roundtable is to be held at Defiance, Ohio. The date has not been decided upon, but it will be some time in March or April.

MRS. DOOLITTLE'S DEATH.

It Occurs at the Home of Her Sister in This City.

Mrs. Charles Doolittle, sister of Mrs. George Carpenter, residing on west Center street, died at her home this morning at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Doolittle resided at Chicago and was on her way to New York, and stopped off here to visit her relatives, this having been her former home. She had been a sufferer from consumption for some time, and while here grew much worse, and the final result was death. Mrs. Doolittle was thirty-eight years of age.

The funeral will occur from the Carpenter home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the remains will be interred here.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

Nineteen applicants for teacher's certificates took examinations before the county board.

After the services at St. Mary's church, Sunday forenoon, the committees for the ensuing year will be chosen.

Some Pittsburg oil people were in this city yesterday on their way to La Rue where they intend to procure oil leases.

Marion Lodge, No. 402, Knights of Pythias conferred the rank of Page on two candidates Friday night. This order will give another social session soon.

J. A. Anderson, of Cleveland, is moving his family to this city. He has been elected sales manager of the Marion Hedge and Wire Fence company, and has assumed charge.

U. G. Lawrence has accepted a lucrative position with the Marion Hedge and Wire fence company, and goes to Mansfield the first of the week in the interests of the company.

The Bon Zenia club contemplate giving a dance later in the season. If the young men decide to give an affair of this kind they will make it a big success, for they are all hustlers.

John F. Crissinger, executor of the will of David Crissinger, deceased, filed report of final distribution in the probate court Friday. The report was approved and the executor discharged.

The local clothing people, it is announced, will meet Monday evening to make arrangements to close at 6 o'clock each evening of the week excepting Monday and Saturday evenings.

The Marion Deutscher Bund members are practicing for an entertainment to be given soon. The exact date has not been decided upon, but it will be a success when it is once ready to be presented.

Ququa Court, No. 1502, Independent Order of Foresters met at its hall in the Cummin Memorial block, Friday night, and installed the officers elected at the last regular meeting in December. There was a large attendance at the installation.

The Patriarchs Militant met Friday evening in a regular drill meeting. The Canton is getting down to work in order to be the best drilled company at the encampment here next July. The encampment was talked over at the meeting, but no action taken or further committees appointed.

A. Hutchinson is in receipt of a letter from Martin Reynolds of Strunks, Ky., which goes to show pretty definitely that his brother, Hiram, mention of whom has been made in the STAR on several occasions in connection with the uncalled for trunk at the American Express office, is dead.

C. J. Long has just completed a painting in oil that is quite novel and has won him much praise, and the picture is being much admired. It is called the card trick, and is one of the most catchy, cute and popular works that has been painted in Marion for many a day, not to speak of the art and workmanship.

Hon. Geo. N. Crawford, of Nebraska, arrived last night to make his home with his sister, Mrs. M. V. Payne, of Columbia street. Judge Crawford was well known in Crawford county from 1851 to 1862, having lived at Galion and being identified with politics there. He is now in bad health, but hopes with care to recover his normal condition.

Benner Merchant met with an accident Thursday afternoon. He was crossing the C., H. V. and T. track when his horse's foot was caught in the switch, throwing the horse over on him. A passenger train was passing at that time but was stopped before it struck him. His leg was bruised somewhat but otherwise he escaped uninjured.

THE MAYOR'S COURT

ATTRACTS SOME ATTENTION FRIDAY NIGHT.

Lewis Holverstott Waives Examination and Is Bound Over to Court—Charles Hersey Didn't Stand a Trial—News and Notes of the Police Court.

There was a good-sized gathering at the mayor's court Friday evening, as it had been announced that the trial of Lewis Holvestott, who is charged with stealing coal, was to take place. It was thought during the day that a settlement might be reached, but the matter was not arranged. At 7 o'clock Lewis put in an appearance, and after hearing the charge officially read by the mayor, waived examination and was bound over to court in the sum of $300. He furnished the bond and was released.

Only four tramps were lodged by the city over Friday night. This is one of the lightest nights for tramps during the winter. There has been on an average from ten to twenty and sometimes more than the latter number.

Officer Cleveland brought in Charles Hersey, Friday evening, and charged him with indecent exposure of person. Charles had also been drinking, but was not very drunk. He had $3.40 in his pocket, which was taken when he was searched. This morning Charles was brought before the mayor and denied that he had done anything wrong. He refused to plead guilty and said he would stand a trial. His trial was set for 7 o'clock this evening. Hersey is no stranger to the police, and is as well acquainted with the police station as he is with his own home. The one surprising thing about his arrest this time is that he had the price with him. He changed his mind afterwards plead guilty and was fined three dollars.

A gentleman from the rural districts complained to Marshal Blain, Friday night, that he and a companion had gone into a saloon on north Main street after a drink, and that he had laid fifteen cents worth of tobacco that he had just purchased on the counter, while his friend ordered the drinks and then skipped out. The bar tender took his tobacco in payment for the drinks, or rather confiscated it until the price was forthcoming. Marshal Blain referred him to Officer Cleveland and Cleveland sent him to another policeman, and so on until he had gone the rounds of the police force, and then he was sent to Mayor Nichols. He wanted the man arrested that had taken his tobacco. Mayor Nichols informed him that he would have to deposit five dollars to insure the costs, and he said he would do that, too, but finally left without making the deposit.

J. F. Barrett hitched his horse at the rear of the city building Friday, and when he went to return home found that some thief had been to the wagon and stole a stock of provisions that he had laid in. The groceries amounted to about two dollars in value. Officer Hickman was notified but no trace of the thief could be found.

THE ELKS' SOCIAL.

The Ladies Are Working Hard To Make It a Success.

The ladies of the Elks, who are at the head of the committees for the coming social session, are canvassing among the Elks' wives and mothers. They have not set the date, but commenced work Friday. All of the committees were seen and the preliminary work commenced. The report in a local paper that it had been abandoned was not according to the facts.

A program is to be arranged and with feasting, dancing and music there is but little doubt but what the affair will prove a very pleasant one.

Ladies' Social Session.

At a meeting of the Elks Thursday evening a committee consisting of H. M. Stowe, B. E. Kleinmaier and W. E. Stull was appointed to assist the ladies in making the necessary arrangements for the social, the date of which will be announced later. It is the desire of this committee that the ladies of the different committees meet with them at the lodge room at 2:30 p. m., Monday, the 13th.

Messrs. Fred Haberman and W. E. Scofield were appointed to take the places of Mrs. W. G. Harding and G. B. Christian, resigned. COMMITTEE.

Go to Tristram & Young's and take what you want. They are almost giving away fine shoe wear. 1

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC —AND— Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar.
It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year.

IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF

Nervousness,	Broken Constitution,
Nervous Prostration,	Debility of Old Age,
Nervous Headache,	Indigestion and Dyspepsia,
Sick Headache,	Heartburn and Sour Stomach,
Female Weakness,	Weight and Tenderness in Stomach,
Nervous Chills,	Loss of Appetite,
Paralysis,	Frightful Dreams,
Nervous Paroxysms and Nervous Choking,	Dizziness and Ringing in the Ears
Hot Flashes,	Weakness of Extremities and Fainting,
Palpitation of the Heart,	Impure and Impoverished Blood,
Mental Despondency,	Boils and Carbuncles,

St. Vitus' Dance,	Scrofulous Swellings and Ulcers,
Nervousness of Females,	Consumption of the Lungs,
Nervousness of Old Age,	Catarrh of the Lungs,
Neuralgia,	Bronchitis and Chronic Cough,
Pains in the Heart,	Liver Complaint,
Pains in the Back,	Chronic Diarrhœa,
Failing Health,	Delicate and Scrofulous Children,

Summer Complaint of Infants.

All these and many other complaints cured by this wonderful Nervine Tonic.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangement.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., Aug. 20, '86.
To the Great South American Medicine Co.:
DEAR GENTS:—I desire to say to you that I have suffered for many years with a very serious disease of the stomach and nerves. I tried every medicine I could hear of, but nothing done me any appreciable good until I was advised to try your Great South American Nervine Tonic and Stomach and Liver Cure, and since using several bottles of it I must say that I am surprised at its wonderful powers to cure the stomach and general nervous system. If everyone knew the value of this remedy as I do you would not be able to supply the demand.
J. A. HARDEE, Ex-Treas. Montgomery Co.

REBECCA WILKINSON, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion, until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly, with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which done me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world."

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITAS' DANCE OR CHOREA.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887.

My daughter, eleven years old, was severely afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

JOHN T. MISH

State of Indiana, Montgomery County, } ss:

Subscribed and sworn to before me this June 22, 1887.

CHAS. W. WRIGHT, Notary Public.

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

HE KILLED HIS FATHER

The Story of Frank H. Walworth's Unnatural Crime.

SCANDAL IN A FAMOUS FAMILY.

The Parricide Was a Grandson of the Great Chancellor Walworth, and His Victim Had Made a Name For Himself In Literature and Society.

The people who read the New York daily papers are rarely startled by a story of crime, but on the morning of Tuesday, June 3, 1873, they read the record of a parricide that filled the breast of the most indifferent with a feeling of horror. This was the murder of Mansfield Tracy Walworth by his son, Frank H. Walworth. The social standing of the principal characters and the fact that parricide was a crime which the oldest inhabitant knew only by name render this tragedy one of the most remarkable in criminal annals.

CHANCELLOR WALWORTH.

To fully understand its effect upon the public it will be in order here briefly to outline the career of the murdered man, involved in which is the career of his son.

Mansfield Tracy Walworth was born Dec. 3, 1830. He was the son of Reuben H. Walworth, who for 20 years had been chief judge of the court of chancery in the state of New York. The family seat was at Saratoga Springs, but the name was known and honored, not only in New York state, but throughout the Union. Mansfield T. Walworth was the chancellor's second son and was educated at Union college.

About the time the young man graduated his father, who had been a widower, married the widow of Colonel John Hardin of Kentucky. Mrs. Hardin had a daughter who was young and extremely beautiful, and after her mother's second marriage she took up her home with the chancellor in Saratoga. Young Walworth made his home in the same house, and being a cultured, fine looking young fellow he fell in love with his stepsister and she with him. Their marriage soon followed. M. T. Walworth, following his father's wishes, studied law, but always showed an aversion to the profession and a marked preference for literature.

During the war Mansfield T. Walworth was charged with conveying information to the Confederates and was for a time held as prisoner in the old Capitol prison at Washington, from which he was released without a trial.

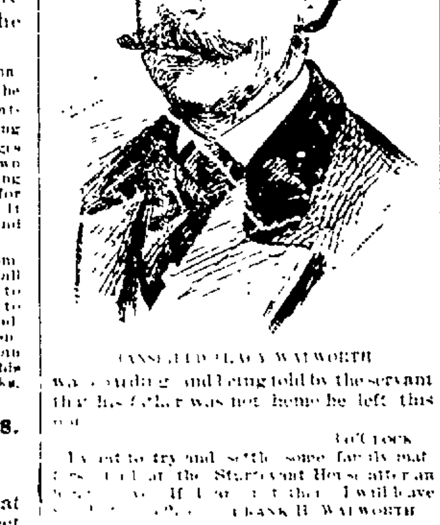

Mrs. Walworth joined the Catholic church soon after her marriage, and it was said this was the cause of the domestic difficulties that sprang up and led to the separation of the husband and wife. Before their separation they had eight children—four boys and four girls—the oldest of whom, Frank H. Walworth, the parricide, was born Aug. 17, 1853.

Mansfield T. Walworth moved to New York city, where his handsome person and fine literary abilities, as well as his family connections, gave him access to the first social circles. Among the books he wrote at this time were "Warwick," "Hilt to Hilt" and "The Lost Nationalities of America," which added to his income rather than to his fame.

No matter the cause of the breach between Walworth and his wife, it broadened and grew deeper and finally ended in charges and countercharges on both sides.

Frank H. Walworth, who at the time of the murder was 19 years of age, bore a striking resemblance to his father. He appears to have been a nervous, ill balanced young man who did not take kindly to study, and who, being left to himself by his father, had not the force or forethought to decide upon a life calling for himself.

On the afternoon of June 3, 1873, Frank H. Walworth went to the Sturtevant House in New York city, registered and was assigned to a room. After this the young man went to the house at Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street where his father was residing and being told by the servant that his father was not home he left this note:

MANSFIELD TRACY WALWORTH.

3 O'CLOCK.

I want to try and settle some family matters. Call at the Sturtevant House after an hour or so. If I am not there I will leave word. FRANK H. WALWORTH.

At an early hour the following morning Mr. M. T. Walworth, still a remarkably handsome man, for he was barely 42, went to the Sturtevant House and sent his card up to his son's room. The bellboy who took the card said the son would see him as soon as he was dressed. While Mr. Walworth was waiting the bellboy appeared again and told him that his son was ready and to please go to his room.

The boy conducted him up three flights of stairs, pointed out the room and then started back. He had not taken five paces after the door closed behind Mr. Walworth before two pistol shots rang out in rapid succession.

The frightened boy rushed down to the office, but before he could tell his story Frank Walworth appeared at the desk with a pistol in his hand and said to the clerk:

"I have just shot and killed my father in my room up stairs."

The clerk was too much bewildered and horror stricken to speak, and young Walworth continued:

"Get a policeman as soon as you can. I want to give myself up."

He then turned, went to the telegraph office and sent a number of dispatches, one to his mother at Saratoga and another to his uncle, C. Walworth, at Albany, the message to the latter being: "I have shot father. Look after mother."

Having done this, young Walworth coolly walked to the Thirtieth street police station and advancing to Sergeant Keating, who was in charge, said:

"Officer, I have just shot and killed my father at the Sturtevant House, and here is the pistol."

At half past 10 that night Coroner Young and Dr. Marsh, who had examined the body, had young Walworth brought before them. Voluntarily he made a statement to this effect:

He said he lived with his mother at Saratoga, where he had been studying law, and that his father was an author. "My father and mother live apart. For years he has been sending us insulting and threatening letters. A short time ago he threatened to shoot myself and mother, and I killed him because of this. When he came to my room, he put his hand in his pocket as if to draw a pistol. Then he laid his hand on my collar, and being stronger than I was, I was afraid he would strangle me, so I pulled my pistol and fired."

It turned out on the autopsy that the murdered man was not armed, not having even a pocketknife in his possession.

From the moment that he announced himself as the murderer of his father up to the end of the trial Frank Walworth behaved with the utmost coolness and indifference. In speaking of his conduct District Attorney Garvin said: "I have seen a great many murderers, but never one who was so cool as young Walworth."

Frank Walworth was taken to the Tombs and confined in Murderers' row, his associates being Sharkey, Scannel, King and others of sanguinary fame, but not one of whom was so self possessed as the young parricide.

Owing to the prominence of the family and the nature of the crime, the news spread rapidly throughout the country, creating the greatest excitement, particularly in Kentucky and Illinois, where the family was as well known as in New York. Mrs. Walworth, the widow of the chancellor, hastened to comfort her daughter, who still seemed to love her husband, and who was prostrated by his death and the danger that threatened her son.

The autopsy showed that two bullets had been fired, one into the right and the other into the left breast of the murdered man. Either wound would have been fatal, and the weapon was held so close as to set fire to the clothes. The body of the murdered man was sent on to Saratoga and buried in the family plot at Greenridge cemetery.

FRANK H. WALWORTH.

It is not often that the trial of a murderer follows so rapidly on the crime as did that of Frank Walworth. He was arraigned in the court of oyer and terminer June 21, just three weeks after the finding of the coroner's jury. The celebrated lawyer, Charles O'Conor, was retained as leading counsel for the prisoner. In addition to Mr. O'Conor, ex-Judge Garvin and W. A. Beech were retained for the defense. Judge Ingraham presided and Assistant District Attorney Rollins presented the case for the prosecution.

Conspicuous among the friends of the prisoner was his uncle, Father Clarence Walworth, the brother of the murdered man and a Catholic priest.

Before the case had been fully on, Judge Noah Davis, the presiding judge of the court, took charge. As the question of religion was an important factor in the trial, Protestant and Catholic clergymen from the city and from the country round about made up a large part of the crowded audience. It was remarked then that there never had been a more brilliant array of counsel brought together in defense of an accused man, but judging from the popular indignation, even these, it was thought, could not save young Walworth from the fate he deserved.

During the trial there was much soiled family linen washed in public, and the letters of the murdered man which were put in evidence, proved very conclusively that he was not only a domestic tyrant, but that his mind was unbalanced. In some of these letters he raved like an insane man and threatened his wife and children with death, but in the same communication, as if stung with remorse, he poured out on them a flood of maudlin affection.

His letters, not only to his wife and children, but also to his sister-in-law and brother, showed that his mind was unhinged.

Writing to his wife about a separation, which he had been urging, he used this language: "Why am I so eager? Because I am hungry and starvation begins to stare me in the face, and this, added to the agonies of my heart, will make me murder you myself. * * * My book failed to bring me money, and my efforts to get a situation have failed. I am a hungry demon and am longing to lap my tongue in soft blood. You are making your grave by the delay. But we shall lie so peacefully side by side in death. Oh sweet death!" This letter, like the rest, is unsigned.

In another letter importuning his wife to sign the papers of separation he says: "I went to Judge Barbour's to kill you. That door chain alone saved you. If you do not sign the papers your lawyer says he sent you to sign, and which your sickness alone prevented you from signing, I shall shoot you. You are dealing with a desparing, demoniacal murderer, or whatever despair makes a man. Sign d——d quick."

In a letter addressed to his sister he uses the following language, which clearly shows that he was either drunk or insane when he wrote: "I am the true Messiah. It will cause a great commotion on the earth when I am summoned, for I shall be a soldier king and live in heaven—the home of my father—God. You of course are not morally my sister, but during our terrestrial intercourse you have manifested such kindness for me that I shall make you one of the rulers of the earth. Keep this secret until I am announced by the sound of 10,000 trumpets. Then fall down and worship me, for I am M. T. Walworth, the true and eternal son of God." And so the letter runs on, like the ravings of an excited maniac.

During the trial the defense sought to show that the accused parricide had inherited from his father the same unbalanced mental peculiarities, and that these had been intensified by a fall and certain mental shocks. Dr. John B. Gray, an expert in diseases of the brain, gave it as his opinion that Frank Walworth was subject to epileptic fits, which manifested themselves in such violent attacks as he had made on his father.

Not satisfied with putting in a strong plea of insanity, the defense in addition took the stand that the shooting was prompted by self defense. The prosecution readily disposed of the second of these pleas by showing that it depended wholly on the evidence of the accused.

On the eighth day after the trial began the case was given to the jury. At 8 o'clock that night the jury returned a verdict of murder in the second degree in the presence of an audience that crowded the courtroom to suffocation.

The prisoner received the blow without a change of countenance, and at a nod from the clerk sat down and listlessly loosened his necktie.

On July 5 Frank H. Walworth was brought before the court for sentence. After an affecting address to the prisoner Judge Davis said in conclusion:

"What terrible thoughts must have rushed upon your father when he received the leaden messenger of death in his bosom from the hands of his eldest boy! I shudder when I think of it, and think you ought to devote your whole life to a repentance such as God only can accept for so horrible a crime. The sentence of the court is that you be imprisoned in the state prison at Sing Sing at hard labor for the full term of your natural life."

Everybody looked amazed when the judge had concluded, but the prisoner exhibited not a tremor of emotion.

On Wednesday morning, July 9, just five weeks after the murder of his father, Frank H. Walworth was taken to Sing Sing prison. Five years afterward he was pardoned at the solicitation of many friends, and has since dropped out of sight.

MISS KELLY'S LOVE LETTERS

They Come In Bushels Since the Story of Her Inheritance Was Published.

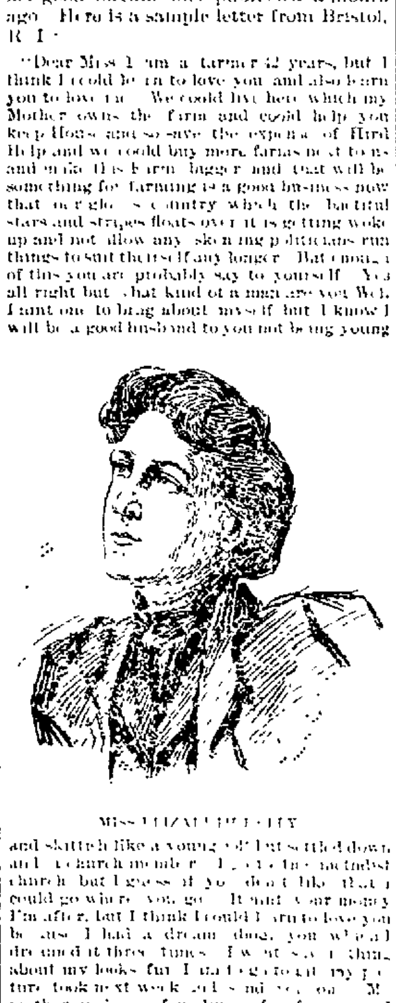

If ever there lived a modest maid, she is Miss Elizabeth Kelly of Philadelphia, who believes that she is about to come into possession of a fortune of $15,000,000. She is the eldest daughter of William Kelly, a more than middle aged gardener.

The notoriety that came to her when the announcement was prematurely made that the immense fortune left by her father's older brother, who had perished by shipwreck on his way home to England from his Australian gold mines, was all to be hers is not at all gratefully borne.

Letters from all points of the compass and from all sorts and conditions of men and not a few women have fairly deluged the gardener's daughter since the news of her good fortune was published a month ago. Here is a sample letter from Bristol, R. I.:

"Dear Miss: I am a farmer 42 years, but I think I could learn to love you and also learn you to love me. We could live here which my Mother owns the farm and could help you keep House and so save the expense of Hired Help and we could buy more farms next to us and make this Farm bigger and that will be something for farming is a good business now that our glorious country which the bautiful stars and stripes floats over it is getting woke up and not allow any skeming politicians run things to suit theirself any longer. But enough of this you are probably say to yourself. You all right but what kind of a man are you. Well, I aint one to brag about myself but I know I will be a good husband to you not being young and skittish like a young colt but settled down and a church member. I go to the methodist church but I guess if you don't like that I could go where you go. It aint your money I'm after, but I think I could learn to love you because I had a dream, done, you what I dreamed it three times. I was not so... thing about my looks but I am going to get my picture took next week and send it to you. My mother unloose a few lines of reference and so good by till I hear from you. Yours respectful, JOSEPH ——.

"N. B.—I have knowed Joseph for... years. He is good and never drunk... MRS. SARAH HAYES."

MISS ELIZABETH KELLY.

Mr. Alfred S. McKenney of Penn Yan, N. Y., seems to have developed a sudden and sublime affection for Miss Kelly, if the following letter can be taken at its face value:

"DEAR ELIZABETH—Please pardon the use of your Christian name, but I feel so strongly for you in your unprotected position so wholly... much to attract the heartless and unscrupulous that I have unthinkingly... name which only... My dear, I would become... if you would... at... and I would protect you from every care and annoyance... will... word that your kind and loving heart is still your own... I only ask... your wish I will... I am not an old man, but I... years... for a woman's love, and all that man can do I would do to gain yours."

Regrets.

Richard—I had a great dream last night. Thought I went into the office of a millionaire. After sitting down and talking with him a while, he said: "Young man, I like your appearance and I've noticed... for you I'm going to give you $10,000. How will you have it—in money or will you have a check?" And then... but I wasn't going to take any risks you know, and so I said I'd take the cash, if it was all the same to him. All right, said he, and went off to get the money, but as luck would have it I woke up before he got back.

Williams—Well, it's a strange dream.

Richard—Yes, and I've been kicking myself ever since because I didn't take the check.—Boston Transcript.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by L. H. Flocken, the druggist.

An Unselfish Soul.

"My dear wife, please let's have a few minutes without that guitar music."

"And if I ask you to stop smoking that horrible tobacco?"

"That isn't a parallel case. My tobacco discommodes only you."—Petit Journal Pour Rire.

If suffering with piles, it will interest you to know that De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. This medicine is a specific for all complaints of this character, and if instructions (which are simple) are carried out, a cure will result. We have tested this in numerous cases, and always with like results. It never fails.

"Ethel, young Mr. Spoonamore is coming again this evening, is he not?"

"Y-yes, mamma."

"He has made love to you, my daughter, has he not?"

"W-why, yes, mamma."

"And you have encouraged him?"

"Yes."

"Where is your engagement ring, may I ask?"

(Listening) "I—I think I hear it at the door, mamma."—Chicago Tribune.

An Ohio Father's Baby.

"My wife received a sample bottle of Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. For four months she hardly took her clothes off baby cried so. The sample of Dr Hand's Colic Cure worked like magic. I went right to the drug store and bought a 25c bottle and a bottle of Dr Hand's Pleasant Physic, and we are truly grateful that such relief has come to baby and to us."—Respectfully Geo. M. SUNNY VENEZUELA

FEATURES OF LIFE IN A LAND OF PERPETUAL SUMMER.

Over One Thousand Rivers Traverse the Republic's Surface—Luxuriant Vegetation and Impenetrable Forests—Great Mineral Wealth—Customs of the Caribs.

[illegible] the country about which [illegible] walking the most, is the [illegible] which we know the least. [illegible] a dim idea that it is [illegible] the northern coast of [illegible], that it contains the Orinoco, that it was freed by Bolivar [illegible] a country where earthquakes and revolutions are of almost [illegible] We have learned lately that England wants a slice of it, for which there are goldfields and [illegible] Venezuela asks us for protection.

As a matter of fact, Venezuela is one of the most interesting countries of the western hemisphere. It is no insignificant little republic, but a nation with an area three times as large as that of France and greater than any country in Europe except Russia. It is ten times as large as the British isles and has a population of 2,500,000 people. Its southern boundary is almost under the equator, but its northern seacoast is over ten degrees north of that line.

If the temperature depended wholly on latitude, Venezuela would be a very hot place, but the diversity of its surface gives it a wide range of climate. In the low marshes the mercury stands at over 100 degrees above, but the naked natives can look up to the faroff mountain tops where the eternal snows glisten in the sun.

The northern part of the country is ribbed with the ranges of the Andes, and on their broad plateaus and in their fertile, elevated valleys are built cities which have a climate that is almost ideal. Their whole year is one continuous spring. Their summer days are the warm, sunshiny days of May, and their winter days are those of showery April.

But the great glory of Venezuela is its rivers. It is probably the best watered country on the globe. Over 1,000 rivers traverse its surface, and one of these, the Orinoco, is one of the greatest in the world. The Orinoco rises in the far southern part of the country in a spot which has not yet been visited by civilized man and runs almost directly north for over 1,400 miles. It is navigable for over 1,000 miles of its length, and many of its 436 tributaries are also big enough to be traversed by steamboats. These great waterways furnish easy means of communication with the adjoining countries of Colombia, Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru and Brazil.

With so many great rivers, Venezuela ought to be a well explored country. But it is not. The southern portion of it is practically unknown to white men. The reason for this is that while the watercourses are wide enough and deep enough to float good sized boats they are blocked by the tangle of primeval forests.

Wonderful forests these are, too, in which species which with us are mere vegetables or shrubs grow to be towering trees. The palm trees in the Venezuelan forests are gigantic growths. The woods that line the banks of these streams are impenetrable, for the rank vegetation towers away above the head of a man, and the trees and underbrush are laced and intertwined and matted by great vines and creepers. The branches form an arch over the streams, and the natives paddle their canoes in a twilight even at noonday.

Yet these very forests are one of the great sources of Venezuela's wealth. Today they form a barrier to the spread of civilization, but the time is near when they will be the magnet that will attract it. At the last national exposition at Caracas there were exhibited [illegible] different kinds of woods, [illegible] every variety used in the arts [illegible] There are acres of [illegible]ony, red cedar, rosewood [illegible] trees that have never been touched by the ax. There are trees which produce rubber—thousands of square miles of them. In the trackless forests are myriads of plants which are worth their weight in gold in the chemist's shop. These are some of the undeveloped resources of this wonderful country.

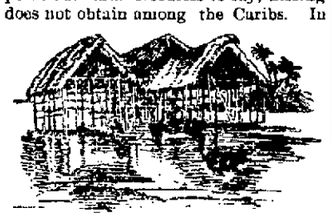

The whole of Venezuela, in fact, is practically undeveloped. The principal export product is coffee. In the controversy which has recently attracted so much public attention it has been frequently remarked that the interest of the United States in Venezuela was a sentimental and not a practical one; that we did not care whether her markets were open to Uncle Sam or John Bull. Here are some facts that touch on this point: As long ago as 1889 Venezuela exported to the United States products to the value of $10,000,000 and imported from our country manufactured goods to the extent of half that sum. This was more than she annually sells and buys from England, Germany, France and all the other countries of Europe. We get from the Venezuelans coffee, cocoa and sugar. They buy from us cotton cloth, machinery, hams, flour and lard.

There is a direct line of steamships between the United States and La Guayra, and many sailing ships connect the two countries. We are connected with them by cable also. What this trade will amount to when the boundless resources of Venezuela shall have begun to be developed can only be imagined.

As for the mineral wealth of Venezuela, it cannot well be estimated. The gold mines, most of which are located in the territory which Great Britain wants, are not particularly rich. When their wealth has been more fully developed, it may be discovered that they are worth more than they now appear to be. The value of the copper, silver, iron and coal mines there is indisputably great. Besides this there are great lakes of asphalt, much more valuable than those on the island of Trinidad, which England now holds.

The native Indians of Venezuela are an interesting race. They are divided into a number of distinct tribes, and of some little is known. Those of the Orinoco region, who inhabit the disputed territory, are generally called Caribs. They wear the least clothes of any people on earth. The entire costume of a Carib, male or female, consists of a small loin cloth. They are of small stature and of low vitality. They die of wounds that would not trouble a civilized man. At 35 the Carib is old and wrinkled, and he generally dies before he is 40.

The Caribs have some queer customs. The women pierce their lower lips and stick sharp pieces of wood through them, point outward. Needless to say, kissing does not obtain among the Caribs. In accordance with the strange custom of "couvade," the father of a newborn child goes to bed for two weeks and is nursed carefully while the mother attends to her regular household duties.

The Indians live in a most primitive way, many of them inhabiting huts built on piles to elevate them above the waters of the lakes or marshes. These lake dwellings are a picturesque feature of Venezuela scenery.

Although the white people in Venezuela comprise only one-fifth of the entire population, it is a civilized country and is rapidly progressing. Its government is modeled after that of the United States, and its territory is divided into nine large states, a federal district, five territories and two national settlements. Its cities are of such importance that our government is represented by as many as 13 consuls and consular agents in them. There are several lines of railroads. The telegraph, the telephone and the electric light are all used by Venezuelans, and the systems are being rapidly extended. Caracas, the capital, is a city of about 80,000. It is located about nine miles inland from its seaport, La Guayra, with which it is connected by a railroad that climbs a mountain range.

As most of the governing class are of Spanish descent the universal language is Spanish, but almost every one speaks French or German and English besides. Agriculture is the chief industry, because the soil is so fertile that little effort is required to raise the most abundant crops. The value of the annual exportations of coffee alone amounts to over $12,000,000. The mines, which are practically undeveloped, sent out last year gold, silver, copper and quicksilver to the value of $6,000,000. It is a great country, with a great future before it, and some day will be in a position to richly repay Uncle Sam for the fatherly interest he is now manifesting in its welfare.

SEWELL FORD.

Uncle Sam's Army.

The men of our army are believed to be physically the best chosen body of soldiers in the world. At a recent examination of applicants for enlistment in a western city 200 presented themselves, and all but 4 were rejected.

"City" of London Growing Smaller.

In the "city" of London the night population is only 28,000, though in 1861 it was 112,000. The day census taken in May, 1891, showed that 1,186,000 persons and 92,000 vehicles entered and left the "city."

NYE ON STAMMERERS.

SOME EXAMPLES THAT HAVE COME UNDER HIS OBSERVATION.

Incidents In the Life of Lute Taylor, the Sweet Tempered, Sunny Stutterer Who Showed What He Might Have Done. Some of the Things That He Did Do.

[Copyright, 1895, by Edgar W. Nye.]

We were talking about stammering the other evening and of how philosophically some took it, while others seemed to feel, you know, as though it were a mark of divine wrath. As some men are born bald, while others acquire baldness and yet others have baldness thrust upon them, so it is with stammering.

I was reminded at the time of Lute Taylor, a philosophical stammerer. He was a sweet tempered, sunny soul, and when he laid aside his tusks, 22 years ago, I make no doubt that he entered into the joys of that life where no stammering tongue is heard, "but where language is music, life is thought and law is love."

Most of us start out in life to be Raphaels, to paint a masterpiece or carve an eloquent statue from the dumb and puleless stone, but at 35 we decide to put a tail on it and call it a dog, or, as Thoreau says, "The boy gathers materials for a temple and then when he is 30 concludes to build a wood shed."

"But there was one among us," says Taylor's biographer, "who had not made this failure. He had kept his heart." He had no time to make money. It was said that his stammer was like a dam that holds the water back to give it power to turn the wheel and set a thousand shuttles dancing and gleaming in a glad, swift minuet.

Taylor only showed what he might have done and then died instead of accomplishing a great deal and thus irritating a lot of small literary hound pups who years after might attract momentary attention to themselves by barking at the front door of his reputation. There's nothing so discouraging to the valor of a backbiter as the cool hauteur of the silent tomb.

Mr. Taylor edited The Morning Leader of La Crosse, Wis., and wrote humorous and poetic prose, not alone on a salary, but to the hungry hearts of his friends. Generosity and wealth combined could do no more.

When he went to La Crosse, a prominent contractor was building a bridge over the Mississippi. Every morning a pale, round faced man with blue eyes used to come and watch the pile driver as the big hammer weighing hundreds of pounds slowly rose to its full height and then, as if by mistake, dropped back with a wicked plunk on the top of a quivering pile so as to send little shuddering waves in a million circles over the water.

When the mighty iron weight arose, the pale, sad face would follow it, and when it fell the jaw and head would drop with it till the weary watcher's neck began to get tired, and then the weary watcher would go away. In the morning he would come back again and do it all over. This went on that way for a week or ten days, and the contractor got so that he looked for the strange youth to come and sort of conduct the morning exercises. After a week had gone by and nothing had been said the pale director who had been punctuating the pile driver's work stole up to the contractor and said:

"D-d-d-d-do you own that th-th-thing th-there?"

"Yes," said the contractor, "that's mine."

"We-well," said the pale student, "I've b-b-been thinking a g-g-g-good deal about that and the t-t-t-trouble you have with it, and I c-c-c-can fix that thing so that it'll s-s s-stay up there."

Afterward the contractor said he learned that the sweet faced youth with the guileless heart was Lute Taylor, the editor of The Leader.

Taylor said that the "Black Crook" as produced in New York might be immoral, but thanks to the sterling integrity of the west nothing could be more free from such a charge than the performance in St. Paul. It was as proper as a girls' recess at a district school in the glad summer time. It was a spectacle which, so far as legs seemed to go, reminded him of a visit to Rus Munger's piano store on Third street or the turning lathe on the south fork of the Kinni Kinnick. The "Black Crook" as given in St. Paul was not only absolutely free from sin, but with its realistic representation of hell, occupied almost entirely by bad actors, the play became at once a great moral engine and power for good. [Possibly I may not recall the exact language, but this was the spirit of it.]

Mr. Taylor said that, considering the prominence given to a man by stammering, he wondered that otherwise stupid people did not give more attention to this science. He was a Republican himself and was once accused by a Democrat of being entirely unknown except on account of this affliction. Taylor said that on reflection he was surprised to see how truthful this was, considering the unreliable source from which it came.

He also claimed that in joint debate where his political adversaries had insisted on giving him a lot of time with lavish generosity, sometimes a couple of hours for 15 minutes of desultory remarks, he had in righteous wrath overcome his stuttering for the time and made such a good record that the enemy fled in dismay.

Also another advantage of stammering discovered early in life was this: In recitations at school, especially in the languages, he found that by extending the jaw and going into a slight trance he could appeal to the hardened tutor in such a way as to escape the usual punishment for inadequate study and thus give himself that much coveted leisure and out of door exercise and pomological research which his system seemed to crave.

In the summer of 1857 Mr. Taylor was publishing The Journal at River Falls, Wis. There were five good stammerers in the village, each in an active state of eruption. Each had a style of his own. They were a little jealous of each other, but each claimed to have a distinct stutter that was characteristic of himself and also to have created the part. So you see they did not clash much after all.

Taylor's stutter was offered in such a gentle sort of a quizzical way, with an upward curve of the mouth at the corners and such a luscious twinkle of the eye, that you sort of felt flattered by it, as though he had been doing it to please and entertain you. But D. H. Levings, a house, sign and carriage painter, grainer and gilder of River Falls, always looked mad about something when he stuttered, and a wicked glitter came into his eye, such as you will witness in the aggrieved and outraged hen.

Mr. Levings was school director in 1857, and Mr. Taylor was clerk of the board. In conversation Mr. Levings, according to Taylor, worked everything about his face except his voice and did everything but talk.

Mr. Henry K. White was also a good, competent and earnest stutterer, considering what meager advantages he had as a child. He put less emotion into the business than the others, but he was more even and reliable and could always be depended upon to work very faithfully and say mighty little.

In 1859 the foreman of The Journal was William J. McMasters, a first class printer. He was one of the purest, sweetest and kindliest printers that ever squirted the juice out of an open column of dead matter into the eager eye of a novice. Mr. McMasters could set up a whole paper easier than he could converse eight minutes. He hated to stutter and had an apologetic way. It was known that the editor stammered, and so when Taylor was gone McMasters could be the understudy, and many people to this day think they met and swapped conversation for consonants with Taylor when it was really McMasters.

Strange to say, McMasters was not on the school board. He did not come till after the regular annual school meeting.

There was also a fifth man, living over about where the Junction mill now stands. He was called the Atomizer. Most everybody got out of the way when he began to scatter dentals and labials around over the thirsty earth. He happened to be on the street when George W. Witherill rode into the village for the purpose of securing the job of tutorizing the River Falls public school. Mr. Witherill was young and put together in a sportive mood, if one might be permitted to use that expression. He inquired about the school board, and the Atomizer began to spray the western hemisphere with information and cover George W. Witherill with facts that could hardly be called dry facts. Witherill took a few of these facts and hastened down street with his umbrella still up.

At the corner he asked again about the location of The Journal office and happened to inquire of Henry K. White, the earnest stutterer. Henry did the best he could, but he read horror in the face of George W. Witherill, who thought he had struck a colony of conversational obstructionists.

Getting a clew to The Journal office and timidly entering it, he encountered William J. McMasters.

"Is Mr. Taylor, the editor, in?" asked George W. Witherill, instinctively running up his umbrella.

Mr. McMasters took a large bite of climate, opened his hands and closed them, shut his eyes tight, gave a gurgle and a whistle that shook down a pathetic editorial; then he opened his mouth, and one could see his larynx quiver in the rich autumnal sunshine, but it was some time before he could state, with a jerk, that Mr. Taylor was out, but would be back soon.

Mr. Witherill seemed sort of faint after this, and as he sat down at the desk he moved the paste away, so that he could not smell it, and asked for water. By and by Mr. Taylor came in and was introduced by Mr. McMasters. Mr. Witherill went over and opened a window. Taylor saw at once that Mr. Witherill was extremely neurotic, and, so to say, afraid of the cars, so he said that the only way he saw was to go and consult Mr. Levings, the director, who could talk fluently. They found Mr. Levings painting a house, and some of the green from a set of new blinds had adhered to Mr. Levings features and gave him a savage air, as who should say: "I am on the warpath now. Beware!"

Mr. Taylor introduced him with an unnecessary amount of backing and filling and subterranean gurgling that shook a quart of plums from a small tree near by and sent a tortoise shell tomcat up the side of the freshly painted house. Mr. Levings replied with a fierce hesitation and general congestion that made Mr. Witherill quail.

He did not get the school, but people who saw him two or three miles out of town running said that he was resigned and cheerily went into the digging of ginseng, which is a quiet life, full of communion with nature.

Mr. Taylor, though laying no claim to great piety or goodness, by his sweet philosophy and his ability to draw comfort and even amusement from all the harsh rebuffs of outrageous fortune, even as he did out of this severe affliction, taught those who knew him a gentle and generous lesson better than all the cold, hard, cruel maxims hewed out by weak and brilliant men who through all ages have constructed a philosophy exclusively for the admiration and use of other people.

Bill Nye

Just to Save Trouble.

The bill collector merely poked his head inside the door, expecting to receive the usual request to call again, but the debtor surprised him by asking him to come in.

"Now look here," said the debtor impressively. "I want you to answer a few questions for me honestly and fairly."

"All right. Go ahead," returned the collector.

"Did you really expect to get anything by calling here this afternoon?" asked the debtor.

"Frankly, I did not," replied the collector.

"You would really be surprised if I paid you something on account, wouldn't you?"

"I would."

"Then, as I understand it, you call here once a week merely as a matter of principle?"

"That's it."

"You feel that it is a part of your duty to make a demand upon me once in so often?"

"I do."

"Well, I wouldn't have you shirk your duty for anything, but it seems to me as if you were unnecessarily wasting time."

"But how can I help it if you won't pay up?"

"Use the telephone," replied the debtor cheerfully. "That would be quicker for you and not nearly so annoying to me. That's all today. You may call me up next Thursday, and I'll tell you when to call me up again."—Chicago Post.

He Had.

The temperance apostle was walking along the sidewalk, serene in the consciousness of his own goodness, when a well dressed man stopped him and shook his hand.

"Guess you don't remember me," said the well dressed man.

"Why—ah"—

"Three years ago I attended one of your meetings, and heard you draw a graphic picture of the able mechanic whose children went ragged, while the children of the saloon keeper, with whom he spent his wages, were dressed in silks. The story fitted my case to a T."

"And you reformed?"

"Should say I did reform. Went into the saloon business myself."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Banker's Advice.

Baron Rothschild was asked by a friend of his to advise him in the matter of a couple of financial transactions, one of which offered a very large rate of interest, the other a much smaller one.

"If you want to dine well," the baron replied after a moment's reflection, "go in for the first. If you want to sleep well, invest in the second."—Figaro.

Her Only Hope.

"Did you ever see Miss Winchwether?"

"No; what of her?"

"She was married the other day to a blind man."

"How very odd."

"No; you wouldn't say so if you'd ever seen her."—Chicago Record.

Well Supplied.

In the gardens of a certain nobleman's country house there happened to be fixed up at different spots painted boards with this request, "Please do not pick the flowers without leave." Some wag got a paint brush and added an "s" to the last word. Everybody came away with splendid bouquets.—Tit-Bits.

Getting Ready.

Mrs. Speeler—Vy, professor, you haven't combed your hair viddin a week.

Professor Speeler—Nein, mein frau! I hab a public performance on de piano dis night.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Felt Guilty.

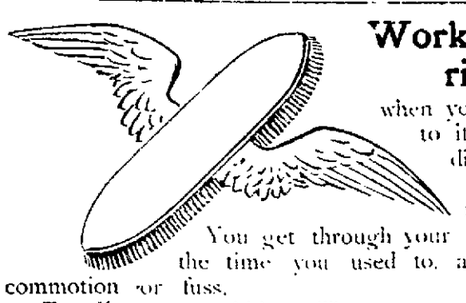

Mrs. Von Blumer—What makes your baby brother so bashful, Willie? He won't look any one in the face.

Willie Slimson—I guess it's because he isn't paid for yet.—New York Herald.

Payment on Publication.

"This joke," said the disgusted subscriber, "was originated in 1784."

"Yes," replied the editor calmly, "that was when we bought it."—Indianapolis Journal.

Work flies right along when you take Pearline to it. So does the dirt. Every scrubbing brush seems to have wings. You get through your cleaning in half the time you used to, and without any commotion or fuss.

Pearline saves rubbing. That means a good deal besides easy work, even in house-cleaning. Paint and wood-work and oil-cloth, etc., are worn out by rubbing.

Pearline cleans, with the least labor, and without the least harm, anything in the world that water doesn't hurt.

Send it Back — Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 668 JAMES PYLE, New York.

REV. THOMAS MOTHER

Dies at Her Home in Bradford County, Pennsylvania, Friday Night.

Rev. W. E. Thomas, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city, was called to Wyalusing, Bradford county, Pa., today, by the announcement of the death of his mother, Mrs. Mary Thomas, wife of the Rev. Thomas Thomas, of that place.

Mrs. Thomas' death occurred Friday night. She was about 72 years of age and had been an invalid for a long time, but of late has gradually grown worse, until she became a great sufferer. The announcement was nevertheless quite a shock to Rev. Thomas, and has the sympathy of many friends here in his bereavement.

In one collection of bargain shoes for ladies and misses we have 200 pairs, not one of which ever sold for less than $2.00. Some actually cost us $3.00. In in one sweeping sale you get your choice for only one dollar, spot cash.

MARION MAN AFTER OIL

Oil Lands Still Being Leased in the Vicinity of LaRue.

Oil lands are still being leased in the vicinity of LaRue, and today it is reported that something like sixteen or seventeen hundred more acres of oil lands have been leased in that territory.

A report comes from there that a representative of a Marion firm is in the village, and during the past few days has leased all the land possible that is supposed to contain oil. It is believed that the oil fields spread all about LaRue, and oil is the one topic of conversation there.

"Gee Whiz!"

The main attraction at the Chicago Cycle show, this week, was the Fowler Sextuplet, the largest bicycle ever built. Geared to 153. Every revolution of the pedals it travels over 44 feet. Soon as they can find six men with nerve enough to ride it, they'll push it a mile in less than one minute. Do you want the job?

Busy Days AT D. A. Frank & Co.'s

These January days are all too short for the leisurely shopper who finds that it pays to explore the store, and not to be satisfied with the bits of news we print in the papers. Never mind, for though you skipped some rare-ripe bargains yesterday, be sure there will be others as good tomorrow. THE CLEARANCE SALE OF OUR OWN STOCK, also the samples of odds and ends of a large jobbing house enters its second week this morning, and the event is celebrated by finding space for more of the unheared of bargains from the duplicate stock. Too bad, but the thousand of dollars' worth and the tens of thousands of garments will be too few for everybody to get their full share, and it is out of the question to to even duplicate these garments at present prices, but fair notice is given. Hundreds of prudent women will gather a few years' supply of Ladies' and Children's Wool and Silk Mittens, Ladies' and Children's Wool or Cotton Underwear, Ladies' and Children's Wool, Cotton or Fleeced Lined Hosiery, Fascinators, Ladies' or Children's Hoods, Men's Working Shirts, Men's Overalls, Men's Drawers, Men's Caps, Men's Working or Dress Gloves, All-wool Blankets, Linens, Dress Good, Silks and Outing Flannel.

To Add Attraction To The Above Goods . . . .

We will sell Silk Remnants and manufacturer's lengths of Embroidery, Swiss Cambric and Hamburg, at reduced prices--less than cost to make. A beautiful assortment to the first comers.

UNPRECEDENTED CARPET SELLING has been going on for a week, caused by the unmerciful cut on competition. New Carpets--prices like these are unheard of any place but here. They may never be repeated, no not even by us. Warning--come while we are in the money losing notion.

PRICES A FOURTH TO A THIRD LOWER THAN EVER on the richest of Fur Garments. It is amusing to read the Marion fur ads. and see how closely they try to imitate us. As the imitation compares with the genuine so does the others' fur selling compare with ours. At $50.00 Genuine Marten Capes 25 inches long and 125 inches sweep, at $25.00 Genuine Beaver and Otter Capes different lengths and sweep, at $12.50 real Wool Seals and Fine Electric Seals 30 and 36 inches long, at $8.75 elegant Electric and Wool Seal Capes nicely lined and trimmed. Medium Cloth Jackets at 29c. Real choice new style Jackets at $3.75, $5.00 and $7.50. This includes all the swell things out this season. Cloth Capes--a few to close at just one-half price.

RESULTED IN DEATH.

JAMES LAWLER NEVER REGAINS CONSCIOUSNESS AFTER HIS ACCIDENT.

He Lingers Until Late In the Afternoon and Quietly Passes Away--A Miracle That Death Was Not Instantaneous--His Remains Taken To His Old Home at Minerton.

At 5:35 o'clock, Friday afternoon, James Lawler died from the effects of the wounds which he received from an accident in the forenoon at the yards of the Marion Manufacturing works. The STAR of Friday gave the particulars of the accident, and told how his skull was crushed, stating that he would probably not survive the injuries received.

All day he laid in a stupor, and early in the afternoon it was realized that death was not far away, and that the final dissolution had commenced. He lingered, however, until after 5 o'clock, when his eyes were closed for the last time. He did not regain consciousness and was unable to recognize any of the members of his family after he was hurt.

James Lawler was nearly 46 years of age, and had a wife and six children. He removed here some two months ago from Minerton, Vinton county, where his brother owns rich coal lands. He was a carpenter by trade, and had only been at work for a few days at the Marion Manufacturing works when he met with the unfortunate accident which cost him his life. The family are grief-stricken in their bereavement, and have the sympathy of many friends.

John J. Lawler and another brother have arrived and are making arrangements for the final disposal of the remains, which were removed from here this afternoon at 1:30 over the C., H. V. and T. for Minerton, where the funeral services will be held on Sunday or Monday from St. Mary's catholic church at that place.

'TWILL BE THE SIXTH

The Annual Shoe Offering to the Needy To Be Made Soon.

For five successive years the needy of our city have received, annually, ever welcome gifts in the way of shoes from John H. Stoll.

Ere this the sixth annual offering would have been made had it not been for Mr. Stoll's recent illness. At least, it was so explained to a STAR scribe who, thinking the time was about ripe, called, last evening, and asked when the distribution would take place.

Mr. Stoll stated that it would be only a matter of a few days until he would have everything in readiness and the distribution would then at once be made.

Are you tired of buying poor eating and poor cooking apples, which are small and flavorless? Then go to J. W. Thew's and leave your order for those fancy York State greenings, spys, Baldwins, etc, which will please you, both for eating and cooking. 41t2

NOT UNTIL SPRING

Will the Contracts for the Completion of St. Mary's Church Be Awarded.

St. Mary's new church, now under roof, and awaiting the completion of the interior, has been cleaned out, and work will not again be commenced until the spring months have opened up.

There are a number of contracts yet to be awarded for the completion of the interior, but these will not be let until about the time that work is again to be commenced on the edifice. It is hoped by the pastor, members of his committee and his parishoners to be able to finish the structure during the year 1896.

We are making a sweeping January clearance of shoes. The real, honest truth is we are overloaded and must convert stock into cash. Your confidence is invited, your inspection invited. You can't afford missing your choice from 200 pairs of $2.00 shoes for one dollar. 42-t2 J. E. RHOADS.

Epworth M. E. Ladies.

At the regular meeting of the Epworth M. E. Aid society held last night, the treasurer reported $56.58 net proceeds of the Christmas sale and it was decided to hold their annual Easter sale and supper, also to hold on Saturday, January 18, 25 and February 1, a bread, cake and pie sale. These sales to be held by wards, Third and Fourth and First and Second combined. Therefore every lady in the Third ward is requested to furnish on Jan. 18 either bread, white or brown, rolls, cake, cookies, doughnuts, ginger bread or pie. The sale to be held in the kindergarden room of the church beginning at 10 a. m. Watch the STAR next week also the M. E. bulletin board.

The Reformed Church at Waldo will be dedicated on February 2d, with appropriate services. There will be services in the morning, afternoon and evening, and distinguished clergymen from abroad will be present to participate in the services. The public is cordially invited E. GARNER WILLIAMS, Pastor.

An extravagant or misleading statement was never published by Rhoads' shoe house, so the public can have full confidence in reading the special January prices. Two hundred pairs of ladies' shoes, good as the day they were made, go at less than half price. Many shoes that cost $2.50 and $3.00 are on the dollar bargain counter. They are worth looking up.
